BURGLARS GET $7,500 HAUL BY BREAK-INS

Main Street and North Park Street Business Places Entered Early Today.

BLAME ORGANIZED GANG

Two Mansfield clothing stores were robbed of 275 men's suits worth an estimated $7,500 early today in burglaries which Mansfield police believe were committed by an organized ring of thieves.

The two stores entered were Brook's Quality Apparel shop at 80 North Main street and Komito's Clothes store at 23 North Park street. Police said that both burglaries took place between 3 and 4 a. m.

The burglars, (police were unable to estimate how many took part) swept up racks full of clothing without regard for patterns or colors but concentrated mostly on the general sizes.

Frank D. DeWoody, manager of Brook's told police that about 150 suits had been taken from his store. Burglars are believed to have entered by breaking a transom over the front door on Main street but removed the stolen suits from the rear entrance.

At Komito's where there is no rear entrance, burglars are believed to have pried the front door open and to have removed suits through the same entrance.

Louis Komito, proprietor of the store, reported that between 125 and 150 suits had been stolen. He told police that the burglars had concentrated on "shorts," suits especially tailored for shorter men.

Both stores were open for business today. The thefts accounted for only a small percentage of the stocks on hand.

Police Chief Thomas M. Bell who made the estimate of the loss, said two detectives had been assigned to the case.

First notice of the thefts came at 3:39 a. m., when N. W. Minnear, merchant policeman, informed officers he found the rear door in the Brook's store open.

Police entered the store and learned that a large amount of the stock had bene removed. At (Continued on Page 14, Col. 6)

Luftwaffe Suffers Greatest Defeat In Malta Attack

VALLETTA, MALTA — (INS) — Aerial warfare over Malta during the week-end terminated in "the greatest defeat ever suffered by the German Luftwaffe," RAF observers declared today as the toll of Nazi planes destroyed or damaged mounted to 104 for the three-day period.

The observers asserted that the results achieved by the RAF fighter squadrons and anti-aircraft batteries were samples of what could be accomplished when the British could put fighter planes in the air in numbers approaching those of the attacking craft.

RAF reinforcements flown to Malta from Cairo enabled the defending fighters to meet the Axis raiders on equal terms for the first time since the large-scale, incessant assaults were launched on this strategic Mediterranean island.

Congressmen Tepid Over 'Wage Freeze'

Henderson Supports Cut In Individual Income Tax Exemptions.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Price Administrator Leon Henderson's disclosure that he had recommended to President Roosevelt that wages be "frozen" for duration of the war today apparently had impressed the ways and means committee, but left many congressmen luke-warm to the proposal.

Henderson, who appeared before the tax-writing committee in a day-long secret session, devoted all of his time to a discussion of what he termed the "highly explosive inflation potential."

He told reporters that he had outlined what must be done to support the seven-point anti-inflation program set forth by President Roosevelt in a recent special message to congress, and stressed that an adequate tax program was an "essential factor" in the situation.

Specifically, Henderson supported the treasury's recent suggestion that individual exemptions for single persons be lowered to $600, married couples to $1,200 and dependents to $300.

"My own thoughts have carried me to an even more drastic reduction in exemptions," Henderson said.

Committee Chairman Doughton (D) N. C., declared that the committee would spend "two or three days" in discussing the question of taxes from individuals, and would then vote on rates, exemptions, and other problems.

Representatives were loath to discuss the Henderson wage-freezing proposal for quotation, but many of them privately questioned the political wisdom of such a move at the present time.

It was pointed out that this is an election year, and the ways and means committee will be faced with the problem of writing a tax bill that congress will pass.

Committee members apparently still favor a sales tax and a withholding levy or other "forced savings" plan, in preference to lower exemptions and higher rates, as a means of raising the required amount of revenue and warding off the inflation threat.

CHARGE TORTURE

Norwegians Say Nazis Try to 'Break' Teachers.

LONDON —(AP)— The Norwegian government-in-exile charged today German occupation authorities in Norway had established a concentration camp for 700 school teachers who were systematically tortured "To break them physically and spiritually."

In an 8,000-word document, the government reviewed alleged attempts by Major Vidkun Quisling, the puppet premier, to nazify the school system through threats and terror and asserted that 1,300 teachers who refused to join the Nazi Teachers' organization were in concentration camps.

After 14 days of a terroristic regime, the statement declared, 20 of the 700 teachers collapsed and agreed to withdraw resignations from the Teachers' front, but the remainder held out.

Where Burglars Sacked Stores Of 275 Suits

Mansfield police today were investigating the burglaries of two Mansfield clothing stores from which 275 suits were stolen between 3 and 4 a. m. In the top left picture Patrolman Herbert Palmer examines the transom which the burglars broke open at the Brooks' Quality Apparel shop at 80 North Main street to gain entrance. At the top right F. D. DeWoody, manager of Brook's, stands at the rear door of the store through which the burglars carried 150 suits. In the bottom left, Patrolman Paul Martin, assistant identification officer, takes fingerprints off the front door of the Komito's Clothes store at 23 North Park street. Burglars pried open this door to enter the store and carry off between 125 and 150 more suits. The bottom right picture shows a close-up of one of the racks emptied by the burglars in the Komito store. Both Komito's and Brooks' were open for business today, only a small percentage of their stocks having been taken in the burglaries. Police Chief Thomas M. Bell, who estimated a loss amounting to about $7,500, said he believed the burglaries were the work of an organized out-of-town ring of clothing thieves.

Streets, Alleys To Be Dusty This Summer Due To Oil Ban

Mansfield's street oiling program, was completely abandoned today when city officials learned that no oil will be delivered.

Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said he had been informed by the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company that no oil would be delivered this summer. The paving company held a contract to supply eight carloads of oil to be used for oiling streets and alleys to keep down dust.

This announcement, according to Director Wolff, means that the 157 streets and 94 alleys oiled last summer will go without treatment this year.

Carl H. Stander, president of the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company, wrote Wolff that the Gulf Oil company, suppliers of the oil, had informed him "due to conversion of all our tank cars to government use, it is impossible to ship your order for road oil."

Director Wolff, Mayor W. J. Locke and City Engineer W. C. Statler agreed that although calcium chloride might be used to treat dust streets that "it would not be patriotic" to ask for railroad cars to carry it to Mansfield. All three also stated that the cost of using chloride would be "very expensive."

Expect Another Crowd For Draftee Send-Off Tomorrow

Mansfield was urged again today by Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the Richland Victory Civic committee, to turn out "in the enthusiastic manner with which it has responded in the past" at tomorrow's send-off of a large delegation of selectees for an Army induction center.

The group leaving tomorrow is entirely from Draft Board 1, which has jurisdiction over the section of Mansfield, west of Main street. Separate delegations will leave within a week from Boards 2 and 3. Details will be announced later.

The four buses which will carry tomorrow's delegation to the army induction center will be parked in the middle of Park avenue west between Walnut and Mulberry, which will be shut off to traffic at 7 a. m. The send-off is officially set for 7:30 a. m.

A band will be on hand to provide music, and the committee will make the usual distribution of gifts to the boys as they depart. The Health Kitchen, restaurant at 30 East Third street, announced it will serve free coffee to the departing selectees if they call at the restaurant.

The contingents from the three draft boards were entertained last night at the regular "going-away" party staged by the committee at the Legion home. The party, open to prospective and present servicemen and their girl friends, was attended by more than 500.

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI—(AP)—A British counterattack in the Burma war theater has turned back a Japanese column of more than 300 men pushing north apparently by river boats, a British communique said today.

(By United Press)

CHUNGKING—Veteran Chinese troops intensified their campaign to hurl a battered invasion column beyond the Chinese frontier today by forcing a 50-mile Japanese retreat from the west bank of the Salween river to the Yunnan province town of Mangshih.

A United Press dispatch from Calcutta, India, indicated that the long-awaited spring monsoon had arrived in Burma to hamper the Japanese offensive and aid the Chinese-British defenders.

The report said the roads of lower Burma were ribbons of sticky mud and airfields had been flooded. Though the Japanese are now operating in the "dry" country of upper Burma, much of their supplies must pass through "wet" lower Burma. The Chinese had predicted that the monsoon would mark the turning point of the battle of Burma, but no news of its start had as yet passed through their censorship.

Contradicting earlier reports, a Chinese military spokesman said the Japanese still were "not completely" driven out of Yunnan and that fierce fighting was raging in the Chefang-Mangshih sector which is more than 25 miles inside the frontier.

The spokesman revealed that the Japanese force totaled about 5,000 men, with 15,000 in the Sal- (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Soviets Smash Heavy Thrust Through Crimea

Frustrate Enemy Attempt To Develop Big Offensive Aimed At Caucasus Oil; Germans Say 'Hell Let Loose' Over Kerch Peninsula.

(By Associated Press)

Russia's armies were reported today to have crushed a big-scale German attack in the Crimea, frustrating a Nazi drive toward the great Caucasus oil fields after four days of heavy fighting.

Soviet dispatches said the Germans apparently were trying to develop their first full-fledged 1942 offensive.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters said German and Rumanian troops, supported by strong Nazi air force units, opened the attack on the Kerch peninsula last Friday.

"The battle since then has been in full swing," Hitler's headquarters said.

A Berlin broadcast quoted a German military spokesman as saying the Crimean action was "the first great offensive operation since the winter defensive."

While a Soviet mid-day communique reported that "nothing important occurred last night," indicating that the German assault had stopped at least temporarily, a Berlin military spokesman declared:

"Hell has been let loose over the bolshevik positions in the Kerch peninsula."

"Squadron after squadron of German planes are racing over the bolshevik front, where Junkers 87's are carrying out dive-bombing attacks."

German sappers and infantry were said to have landed behind Russian lines under fierce fire.

Berlin military quarters acknowledged the importance of the Kerch front but shied at describing the new action as the start of a German "spring offensive."

Military advices reaching London said the German onslaught collapsed against the Red army's stubborn defense and that counter-attacking Russian troops drove the invaders back into their original lines with heavy casualties.

German infantrymen still held an advanced point in one sector, it was said, but now are being fiercely attacked by the Russians.

London military quarters said reports that a German army of 2,000,000 troops had launched an offensive on the Donets river front, in the Ukraine, were "completely unfounded."

Commenting on the Kerch peninsula battle, a British spokesman said the Nazi thrust may have been at least the prelude to a major offensive because "the Germans realize they must clear the Kerch peninsula before advancing from Taganrog on to Rostov."

A German communique indicated that the Russians were attempting to land sea-borne reinforcements to check the assault, reporting that German planes sank two Soviet transports totalling 5,000 tons and several small vessels in attacks off the Kerch peninsula and off the southeast coast of the Sea of Azov.

A Nazi broadcast said the drive was marked by the introduction of new, improved weapons.

In this connection, Tass, the Soviet news agency, charged last week that the Germans had used poison-gas shells for the first time in the Crimea; and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill stern- (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

SUSPENSE: Martinique Fate Uncertain After Petain Move

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Suspense and uncertainty were injected into the question of Martinique and other French overseas possessions today by the sudden decision of Chief of State Marshal Petain to cut short a Riviera vacation and hasten back to Vichy.

State department officials said they had no information which would shed light on Petain's move, but in other quarters it was suggested the Axis powers might be exerting pressure on the Vichy government to undertake some desperate action in retaliation for the Madagascar occupation and what they called the American "threat" to French Western Hemisphere possessions.

It was recalled that pro-Nazi Pierre Laval's sudden return to power in Vichy a month ago was accompanied by reliable reports that he was considering a grandiose campaign to "reconquer" (presumably with German assistance) the French colonial possessions now in British and Free French hands.

In this connection it was noted that Laval yesterday conferred again with Takonobu Mitani, Japan's ambassador to Vichy. It was to forestall Japanese seizure of Madagascar bases, that Britain launched her occupation of the big island.

STILL PAYING: Two More Jap Ships Damaged; Toll Passes 23

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia—Japan apparently still was paying a disastrous price today for her defeat in the Coral sea as General MacArthur's headquarters announced that Allied fliers tracking down the scattered, hiding remnants of the great enemy invasion armada and other units had damaged two, and probably three, more ships.

This raised the count of Japanese losses in the six-day battle in the sea gateway northeast of Australia and in its sequel, a ceaseless search of island hideaways, to 23 or 24 ships in the eight days from the start of the Coral sea battle through yesterday.

Nevertheless, Japan's plans have only been delayed and the threat still hangs over Australia that she will try again to smash southward, Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford warned.

Two more enemy transports —casualties numbers 22 and 23 —were hit yesterday in the Solomon islands, which enclose the Coral sea on the north, a communique from General MacArthur's headquarters announced.

The possible 24th Japanese casualty was a large tanker on which, the communique said, air raiders registered two hits or near misses in the Deboyne islands of the Louisiade group, a cluster of tiny islets in the Coral sea off the southeast tip of New Guinea.

An army spokesman said the Louisiades definitely were not occupied by the Japanese, explaining the enemy had landed a few stores and supplies from boats and planes but apparently no ground forces.

He said that the transports attacked yesterday in the Solomon (Continued on Page 14, Col. 4)

RUSSIANS HALT FIRST BIG NAZI PUSH IN CRIMEA

ly warned Hitler in his broadcast Sunday that Britain would attack the reich with poison-gas bombs if Germany used gas against Russia.

The London Star today published a Vichy news agency dispatch quoting Bucharest sources as declaring that a new type of German land mine had deceived the Russians into believing the Germans were using poison gas.

Actually, the dispatch said, the new-type explosive "causes a considerable decrease in pressure and neutralizes oxygen in the air over a radius of 300 yards."

A German spokesman again denied that Hitler's armies had resorted to this outlawed form of warfare, asserting that the coming battles would prove the Germans needed no gas.

Meanwhile, a Soviet communique reported that a big munitions works in Munich, Germany, had been blown up and attributed it to mounting "resentment of the German people to the criminal Hitlerite clique."

The communique said walls and fences in Munich, the birthplace of the Nazi movement, were plastered with such slogans as "Down with the criminal war!"

Sailors Join Fight On Kerch Peninsula

MOSCOW—(INS)—Tough sailors from the Black Sea areas and well-trained troops of the Russian Caucasian command today waged a stubborn battle of resistance against the first heavy spring drive by the Germans.

The Nazi assault, launched against the Soviet garrison on the Kerch peninsula, may develop into the spearhead of the long-delayed Hitler spring offensive.

(A dispatch of the Exchange Telegraph agency said heavy fighting was in progress "as the German spring offensive continues.")

The Russians have maintained considerable forces in the peninsula area.

Strong Soviet air forces based in that section of the Crimea undoubtedly will play a vital part in combatting the German campaign.

Germans Say Attack Started on May 8

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts)—(AP)—The German high command announced today a battle has been in full swing on the Kerch peninsula since German and Rumanian troops launched an attack May 8 with strong air support.

German military circles were not inclined to describe this battle as the beginning of a German "spring offensive," but the military spokesman did say the operations were "the first great offensive undertaking since the winter defensive."

He said "fierce mopping up operations on the central front" also were of "no mean importance."

The Kerch peninsula is important, he said, because it has been strongly fortified for the Russians as "a springboard for major operations," probably for a drive to reconquer the Crimea.

Report Explosive Neutralizes Oxygen

LONDON—(AP)—The Star published a Vichy News agency report quoting Bucharest sources today which declared that a new type of German land mine had caused the Russians erroneously to believe its Nazis had used poison gas on the eastern front.

Prime Minister Churchill has warned Germany that any use of gas against Russia would be regarded by the British as gas warfare against Britain herself and would be rapid in kind.

That "most Russian casualties in the last few days bore no trace of wounds made the Russian high command believe that poison gas had been used," the dispatch asserted.

Actually, according to it, a new type of explosives "causes a considerable decrease in pressure and neutralizes oxygen in the air over a radius of 300 yards."

STOCKHOLM—(INS)—Viktor Lutze, chief of staff of the German storm troopers, has informed Berlin correspondents that heavy losses have been suffered among 1,000,000 storm troopers who have been sent to the front since outbreak of the war, dispatches received in Stockholm said today.

Lutze was said to have revealed that 12 generals and 27 brigadiers were among those killed.

It was pointed out that the storm troopers do not constitute independent units but are found in every regiment of the German army.

Four CCC Youths Are Warned That Trouble's Ahead

Four 17-year-old colored boys from the CCC camp on U. S. route 39 will learn "that Richland county is a poor place in which to steal automobiles" if a hearing before Probate Judge Stuart Cramer shows them to be guilty.

Judge Cramer said today that he expected to "make an example" of the youths, scheduled to appear before him either this afternoon or Wednesday, if the hearing reveals them guilty of stealing an automobile at the Blue Goose tavern on U. S. route 30 Monday night.

The foursome, three from Cleveland and the other from Willard, were arrested by Richland county sheriff deputies near the Blue Goose Monday night after a report of an accident had been received by the sheriff's office.

An investigation by sheriff's deputies showed that they had taken a car from the tavern parking lot and had driven, without lights, away from the tavern. Within a short distance from there the car went into a culvert.

The sheriff said he has not been able to determine ownership of the car today. A check of the license numbers is to be made later.

ween valley in northern and central Burma.

It was reported that some Chinese forces had pursued a number of Japanese back to the frontier and challenged a column of enemy reinforcements.

The spokesman disclosed that the Chinese were attempting now to cut off the entire enemy column in the Salween valley by attacking Lashio, in Burma, southern terminus of the Burma road.

This force, he said, was attempting also to isolate an enemy force which has moved northwest from Lashio to Myitkyina, 195 miles to the north.

To counter this move, the spokesman said, the Japanese were attempting an encircling move in the Myitkyina area aimed at "pocketing" the entire Chinese force between Mandalay and Myitkyina.

"The outcome of the Burma war seems to depend on the developments of these two encirclement efforts," he said.

The Chinese strategy appeared aimed at recapturing Lashio from whence the Japanese launched their sortie into China and sent another invasion column northwest to seize Bhamo and Myitkyina.

Yesterday's Chinese communique officially acknowledged the loss on May 8 of Myitkyina, which is 195 miles north of Lashio. Bhamo, 100 miles above Lashio, fell previously.

The Chinese army headquarters communique credited American Volunteer fliers with killing 200 Japanese and wrecking 100 trucks in an attack late Sunday. These casualties were in addition to the 4,500 inflicted by the Chinese in the battle around Chefang, 25 miles inside the border, and adjacent area, which wrecked the Japanese invasion.

The exact Chinese position in the 110-mile area from Mandalay northeast to Lashio is not known here, but it was known that Stilwell's armies had recaptured Maymyo, former British army headquarters and more recently temporary Burmese capital 30 miles from Mandalay.

An enemy advance was reported east from Loilem, 125 miles southeast of Mandalay, toward Kongkum on the Salween river. Several other Japanese troops movements were noted, presumably representing an effort to salvage the situation along the Chinese frontier.

Japanese aerial attacks were reported at Chittagong, on the northeast coast 70 miles above the Burmese border, and Imphal, 220 miles northeast of Chittagong and 40 miles inside India's Assam state.

German authorities isolated the entire areas affected, including the principal downtown business districts and the eastern railroad station, in an attempt to trap the terrorists responsible

Subway traffic was suspended in the bombed areas.

The world-famous Marguerite restaurant and the Ambassador hotel were among the hotels and buildings bombed. All had been requisitioned for German army use.

Three other central Paris hotels were bombed, and a hotel in the Eastern Railroad station area also was bombed.

The new terrorist outburst came one day after the dynamiting of the great German - controlled Bourges radio transmitter station and the derailment of a mine of a freight train near Parthenay in the German occupied zone

Two of four 450-foot pylons at the Bourges station were destroyed and it was believed that service from some of the three long-wave and short-wave stations would be suspended for months. Radio Paris continued to broadcast occasionally, however, possibly through emergency arrangements.

DRUG STORE TO SOON BE JUST A DRUG STORE

Shortages and Priorities To Eliminate Gadgets Now Retailed.

(By Wide World)

NEW YORG—The average drug store soon may look more like—strictly a drug store.

It's all because the 52,000 stores which sell general merchandise in addition to drugs are becoming stripped of gadgets. They can't get replacements because of shortages and priorities.

Scarcities will eat into items made of metal, or other strategic materials affected by priorities, or in which supplies have been cut off because of the war, trade sources say.

Products which might eventually disappear include electric waffle irons, hair dryers, mixers, juice extractors, golf balls, rubber bathing caps and plastic articles.

The disappearance is expected to be on a gradual scale, they emphasize, because most druggists, especially chain stores, built up inventories in anticipation of shortages.

Drugs haven't been depleted much nor have patent medicines, they say, but they pose a question mark after perfumes and toilet water because manufacturers aren't sure how much alcohol they can use.

Soda fountains have had a downturn in profits because the cost of raw materials was up and there was a shortage in some syrups and many things composed of sugar.

Those sundry items such as electrical goods, rubber articles, toys and hardware, druggists gradually have been replacing with glassware and a line of wood products such as beach sandals, mailboxes and birdhouses.

Druggists experimented with plastic articles for a while but, when they were affected by priorities, some retailers switched to clay goods.

Taking hot water bottles as an example in rubber products, one drug trade association official said most of them now sell for under $1 instead of around $3 or $4 as formerly, because manufacturers could make more at a cheaper price and would thus spread their supplies farther.

There are three varieties of hot water bottles made now, he said, and during the next six months druggists expect the amount to be cut to two, then to one, and finally sold only on prescription.

WRITER LISTS OBSERVATIONS IN FAR EAST

'Ramparts of Pacific' By Abend, New Volume at City's Library.

Hallett Abend, Far East correspondent for the New York Times, has set down the observations of his recent swing throughout the Far Eastern area in a new book, "The Ramparts of the Pacific," which has been added to the current titles by the Mansfield Public library.

Abend surveys the entire situation in detail and his book is considered one of great significance and importance. An analysis of the question, "Will Russia Fight Japan" is given by Maurice Hindus in a second short volume, "Russia and Japan."

The delghtful story of "My Remarkable Uncle" heads this entirely new collection of sketches by one of America's favorite humorists, Stephen Leacock. Here are autobiographical sketches and essays galore — cricket for Americans, Christmas shopping, this business of growing old, and many others—highly amusing, yet frequently full of wisdom.

"Agent In Italy," by S. K. is both a thrilling story of personal danger in Italy's underground movement, and a fully detailed, absolutely authentic report on the crumbling of Italian Fascist morale under the terror of German occupancy. An amazing book—a combination of the treatment found individually in "Berlin Diary" and "Out of the Night."

Other non-fiction: "No Sign Shall Be Given," by Tigner; "What the Citizen Should Know About Modern War," by Pratt; "What the Citizen Should Know About the Army Engineers," by Thompson; "What the Citizen Should Know About the Air Forces," by Hartney; "Army Officer's Manual," by Azoy; "Essentials of Nutrition," by Sherman and Lanford; "Soybeans," by Dies; "Complete Book of Diets," by Field; "How to Grow Food For Your Family," by Ogden; "Aircraft Sheet Metal Work," by Giachino.

"Seven Tempest," by Vaughan Wilkins, author of "And So, Victoria," is a picaresque and colorful historical novel, the theme of which concerns the intrigue and conspiracy that swirled around the throne of England little more than a century ago. It tells of those early unhappy years of Victoria's reign when the first public enthusiasm for her had chilled. Many well-known historical characters cross the pages of this fast-moving story, which ranges across England and Germany, Denmark and the Atlantic.

"Wolf on the Fold," by Nellise Child is the story of a Strange family — the chief characters of which are Sister Mary Furie Jones, a phenomenally successful woman evangelist, and her younger brother, Jerry Otis, who is by turns a complete rascal and a boy preacher whose success outshines that of his sister. Others in the family are Simon Furie, the Micawber-like father. Clara his wife, and Effie and Hanna, the two other daughters.

Completed only a short time before the author's death, "The Killer and the Slain," by Hugh Walpole is the strange—almost mesmeric—tale of a man who, in killing the man he hated, killed himself. It is a powerful study of the dual nature of man written with harrowing suspense.

Other fiction: "Stampede," by White; "The Sea and the Shore," by Marmur; "Small Town Murder," by Jefferson.

CHAPTER VII

Raynor agreed, and Hugh came in.

"I'm sorry," said the detective, "to trouble you at this time, but I think a few words will be sufficient. Where were you when you were told of your wife's death?"

"I was at my father's deathbed."

"Is your father dead?"

"No, he rallied, but he has had another sinking spell; he may pass at any time."

"I will detain you but a moment, Mr. McCleod. Who called you from him at the time of the tragedy?"

"My man, Dickson. Doctor Lloyd sent him up for me. My father's apartment is just above my own."

"How long had you been up there when Dickson came?"

"Oh, quite a time. I was downstairs, dancing, when I felt a desire to go up to see my father. I knew he was getting weaker. So when the dance was over I went upstairs. I went through the men's coat room, it's a guest room, you know, and Alma was there, sitting at the powder table, doing things to her face! As if it wasn't lovely enough without! I went up behind her and kissed her, but of course, she saw me coming, in the mirror. I told her where I was going and she said she'd go with me. But I said no, for she had been up not long since, and she ought to stay by the party. I went upstairs, there's a little circular stair you know—"

"I know this whole place is a maze!"

Hugh smiled. "So it is!" he said. "I took me a long time to learn its tricks and its manners. Well, I went on up, and found father very low. He didn't know me, and Emmy, poor girl, needed some one with her, so I stayed, —until Dickson came." He was silent a moment, and then said:

"Raynor, you people must find the unspeakable brute who did this thing! I am not given to vengeance, as a rule, but I want to see that killer caught and punished! It is coming to him, and if your force can't find him I shall get someone who can! Have you any clue? Any hint of what way to look?".

"I fear it is too soon yet, Mr. McCleod, to say yes to that, but rest assured everything is being done that can be done, and our best operatives are on the job... Do you know of a new bracelet Mrs. McCleod was wearing?"

"A bracelet? What kind?"

"Quite an elaborate affair, I believe. A circlet of largish diamonds. She was wearing it when she was found."

"Oh, well, it was all right."

"Did you give it to her?"

"I don't know. I think very likely I did."

"That sounds cryptic to me. Will you explain it?"

"It's this way. I make Alma an allowance for her spending money, and I may say that the amount of it is entirely satisfactory to her. Then, I not infrequently give her a money present, because of a birthday or other holiday occasion. This money she stores away, and when she wishes she buys herself some trinket she wants and tells me it is a present from me. Which of course it is. She always shows it to me with great glee. I think she would have shown it to me tonight, when I saw her in the dressing-room, but just then we both heard a step in the hall, and I went my way and she continued her face-painting. I detest those cosmetics."

Raynor noticed that McCleod continued to speak of his wife in the present tense, but that often happened in his experience.

"You didn't notice a new bracelet, then?"

"No; my wife wears jewelry always in the best taste, I see it as a general effect, but not as individual ornaments."

"Your wife had many admirers."

"And deserved them. She was a gracious, kindly hostess, and had many friends. But not one that would dare offer her a valuable piece of jewelry! The idea is absurd."

"I begin to think we must look outside the house for the criminal. The report from the autopsy may show us another possibility."

"I cannot think Alma had an ailment that I did not know of. But I would rather it should be that than murder. It is incredible, unbelieveable that any one would harm her. You suggest admirers, I suppose you hint lovers, but my wife is as pure as an angel. She would scorn the idea of a secret intrigue."

"Thank you, and you may go."

Hugh went up to his father's room, and Raynor called for Linda, the maid. He felt an interest in the bangle, which needed further inquiry.

Linda was a good-looking girl, who seemed to be of Swedish extraction, she greeted Raynor with a demure, but very respectful nod, and took her seat as directed.

"You have been with Mrs. McCleod, how long?" he asked.

"About three years, sir."

"A good mistress, I daresay."

"There could be no better."

"You had full charge of Mrs. McCleod's jewels?"

"Yes, sir."

"Put them away when she came home from a party, and all that?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did she wear much jewelry at the party here last night?"

"Two clips, two rings, several bangles and a small coronet-shaped piece on her head."

"Describe her bangles. Are they bracelets?"

"No, last night she wore only bangles, light, slender ones."

"With clasps?"

"No sir, bangles do not have clasps. They slip over the hand."

"I see. And how many of these?"

"I don't remember. Perhaps four or five."

"When did you put them away?"

* * *

Linda seemed a little whiter, but her voice was steady as she answered. "Before the men took her away, they removed all her jewelry and handed it to me. I told them I was responsible for it."

"Did you receive from these men the very same pieces of jewelry that you put on Mrs. McCleod when you dressed her?"

"I did."

"And how many more pieces?"

"More pieces?" Linda looked bewildered.

"Yes; one more piece at least. Better tell the truth."

"There—there did seem to be an extra piece, sir."

"What was that extra piece, Linda?"

"It—it was a bangle, sir."

"Describe it."

"It was quite plain, sir. Just a platinum hoop, set all around with diamonds."

"Large stones?"

"Medium large."

"Where is that bangle now?"

"I put it away with the rest of the pieces, in the jewel safe."

"Who has the key to that safe?"

"I have it, sir."

"Give it to me."

"I'm glad to sir. It is an awful responsibility!"

From a slight gold chain around her neck the girl drew up a little chamois bag, and took from it a key, which she handed to Raynor.

He put it in his pocket and said: "Was Mrs. McCleod sometimes confidential with you, Linda?"

"Sometimes, a little."

"Did she ever talk to you about money matters?"

"Not very often, sir."

* * *

Raynor looked stern, and said, a little sharply. "Careful now. Speak the truth. Do you know that Mrs. McCleod had or was about to invest quite a sum of money, without her husband's knowledge?"

"Yes." The reply was so low it could scarcely be heard.

"With whom was she making this investment?"

"With Mr. Murray."

"Did she meet Mr. Murray secretly to make these arrangements?"

Linda's hesitation brought further orders.

"Unless you are frank and truthful, you will find yourself under arrest. Also, what you tell me, if true, will be a kindness to Mr. McCleod and to Mrs. McCleod's memory."

"Is that true, sir?"

"Entirely true."

"Then, sir, she did meet Mr. Murray secretly, and she had an engagement to meet him today."

"Where?"

"At the Chandos, at two, for lunch."

Raynor turned to Colby and said, "Go out and put a trailer on Ogden Murray. Get a good one."

Colby went, but very shortly returned, saying, "Murray left the house some time ago, saying you had told him he might go."

"Oh, very well," said Raynor, insincerely.

It was now nine o'clock on Thursday morning. As near as Raynor could learn, Alma had died around four o'clock. He, himself had been there since half past four, and had no definite knowledge as yet, of the murderer's identity.

Thomas Raynor had gained his position as chief of the Homicide Bureau by his insistent perseverance and determination to get his man. He had just finished the last of the unlikely people he had to interview, by which term he meant the ones who could not conceivably want to bring about the death of Alma McCleod. Some of these he had turned over to Colby, but now they had all been dismissed, and he could return to his work of questioning the members of the household and the more intimate of the guests.

Having looked over the transcription of his talk with Linda, he called for Netta, the other maid who had waited on the ladies at the party. She came in, not in uniform, for her engagement was temporary. In a rather smart street costume, she looked more like a guest than a servant.

"You were here just for the party?" Raynor asked.

"Yes, sir. And my name is Miss Briggs."

"Good! Now, tell me of the very last time you saw Mrs. McCleod alive. Where was she?"

"Well, now, it seems sorta funny, but some few of the ladies, they would go into the men's coat room now and then, 'cause it had such a lovely dressing table—"

"But the ladies' own dressing rooms had those?"

"Of course, but there was always somebody at 'em."

"And Mrs. McCleod used this cosmetic table in the men's coat room?"

"She was in that room a whole lot. Mostly with some of her beaus. She's got about a dozen!"

"Don't tell me anything about the lady, Miss Briggs; just answer my question."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MAY 12, 1942.

A Problem to Solve

PERHAPS Mansfielders didn't need the reminder—but they have it all the same—that their fire-fighting equipment isn't adequate and that the manpower of the department is insufficient.

It seems safe to say that Mansfield had recognized that in the way it voted last fall for a special levy for fire department improvement and maintenance.

Because money from the levy isn't yet available, the projected program can't be put into effect yet.

If that were the entire situation, it might not be as serious as it is.

But with the government regulations interfering with the production of fire-fighting equipment for municipalities—and the need for it now more intense everywhere with bombing of any city possible—the problem becomes far graver.

The report of the National Fire Underwriters doesn't suggest how to get around the puzzle of priorities on equipment, building material, trucks and the shortage of men. That's up to us. We can be glad to at least think the department should be improved.

Now we must go on from there and think how to do it in spite of difficulties.

Why Not a Roll of Honor?

THE war goes on and as it does, its effect comes steadily closer to home, in the most emphatic way possible—casualty announcements.

With the navy announcing its second casualty list yesterday, the number of youths from the Mansfield area who have given their lives for their country stands at five.

On the army side, two air corps members have paid the supreme penalty.

These are but the forerunners of others to follow.

Why, then, should there not be erected in a suitable place, for all to see, an honor roll of war dead?

It could be county-wide in scope, or city-wide. Or there could be two honor rolls.

Why couldn't such an honor roll be erected in Central park, the name of each war hero inscribed on it?

Either city or county government could erect such an honor roll. It should not be hard to make arrangements for keeping it up to date.

The idea is grim? So is war. So is the sacrifice that the flower of our youth is making.

It would be well for all of us on the home front to be reminded of their sacrifices thusly.

The World of the Future

AFTER this war, what sort of world will it be? It is an interesting thing to think about. Also an important thing. For it can hardly be the same world that we knew before Hitler rose to power, or before the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. People could no more go back to such recent but now antiquated times than they could become children again.

All that we can foretell now is what we begin to see dimly from the changes now in progress. Dr. Walter W. Van Kirk of New York, secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, ventures this much prophecy:

"The United Nations will again lose the peace," he says, "unless they are prepared to surrender some of their sovereign rights to a federation in which the security of each is dependent on the security of all.

"When the war is over, if we are to have permanent peace, we will have a larger measure of economic justice. The war on the field of battle ends when the might of arms triumphs, but the economic war is going to go on for a long time to come. I don't know what the new system will be. It won't be the old laissez faire capitalism, or national socialism, or Communism. Perhaps it will be a synthesis made from what is good of these."

The Truck Racket

REPRESENTATIVES of co-operative groups of Pennsylvania farmers have been telling a house committee that their truck drivers entering markets of Philadelphia, Scranton, New York, and Newark are forced to pay tribute before they are permitted to unload. The charges vary from $2.50 to $9 per load. Dr. E. L. Nixon, of Pennsylvania State college, who is a member of the Pennsylvania Co-operative Potato Growers' association, showed about fifty receipts which had been given unloaders. He said:

"There is no uniform basis of charge. It varies with the resistance of the driver, either from his persuasive ability or out of respect for his size."

This kind of thing is completely irrelevant to the purposes for which labor unions have been established. It bears no relation to reasonable hours, proper wages or healthful working conditions. It is, in short, not unionism at all. It is pure racketeering masquerading under the guise of unionism. The American people are not going to put up with it much longer.

Gas Versus Tires

THERE'S more than one way to skin a cat, and authorities at Washington are probably not averse to a little thrifty hocus-pocus for the country's good. Take this gasoline rationing, for example.

When the people of the eastern states have their gas supply reduced, it is evident that the victims are saving not only fuel but rubber. And logically, however they may be discommoded, it is more important to save the rubber than the fuel. The nation as a whole has plenty of gasoline and can produce more, whereas there is no more natural rubber in sight, and it will take years to make enough artificial rubber for current needs.

Thus, if people want to keep their eyes on the ball, probably rubber is the thing to watch. And if there should be an official crack-down on gas sales in the mid-west and across the continent, irate motorists should remember that the less gas they use, the longer their tires will last. By pinching the gas supply, millions of tires might be made to last for the duration.

The Kansas City judge who makes a prisoner take off his U. S. uniform before sentencing him "has something." That uniform must command respect.

Flying was great stuff, until flying bombers drove people back to caves.

DOWN THE HATCH

GOP Gladdened By Bulow Defeat

—By CARTER FIELD

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Defeat of Senator William J. Bulow, of South Dakota, brought joy to the fierce partizans of the White House, because Bulow had inclined to be an Isolationist up to Pearl Harbor. Actually, however, the primary, though interpreted as a victory by the Administration, means very little indeed, and certainly cannot be construed as having any significance with respect to post-war policies.

It may be remembered that South Dakota was one of several States, which went for Wendell Willkie in 1940. These States, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas, broke step with the majority, and with most of their neighboring States, by not approving the third term.

Actually it has often been figured by politicians that the real reason these States went for Willkie was that they had very large German populations, and the Germans, while liking nothing about what Willkie was saying, were even more bitter against F.D.R. Those holding this view have insisted that only the tremendous power of the Kelly Nash machine in Cook county prevented the big German vote in Illinois from throwing that State to Willkie, and they point to the fact that normally Democratic Missouri went Democratic by a very narrow margin.

They have no explanation for Wisconsin and Minnesota going for Roosevelt.

All this is of interest now not because it is a proven political factor, but as bearing on the election this Fall. Republican leaders in Washington are convinced that the defeat of Bulow means they will gain a senator in South Dakota. Actually the same logic ought to have elected a Republican in Utah after Senator William H. King was defeated. Like Bulow, King had served a long time, and, in the opinion of many politicians, has "grown away" from his state. But the Democrat who beat King was elected.

Of course what the Republicans here are really counting on is the same vote which carried the state for Willkie in 1940 beating the all-out-for-Roosevelt candidate who has humbled Bulow. It may happen. If it does it might prove something, but nothing very important.

South Dakota is normally a Republican state. It does not possess, in great numbers, either of the big groups of voters who moved from the Republican to the Democratic party after 1933. It has no big city Democratic machine which must do or die for the Democratic ticket if they want to retain the pipe lines to Washington.

So the election of a Republican senator in South Dakota this fall might easily mean precisely nothing. Or it might mean that the heavy German vote is still against the Democratic party because F. D. R., leader of that party, is so bitterly anti-Hitler. It will be difficult to determine, even afterward, unless there are similar upsets in other states having large German populations. In THAT case the Republican party will not be divided into two parts, but into three—the Willkie group, the pro-German part, and the plain Republicans who are for the war, but not sure what they want afterward.

Now that sort of division may not hurt much in electing candidates for the house and senate here and there, but it is unthinkable for a presidential campaign. So victories of that type, while they look encouraging in the returns, actually will spell plenty of trouble for the G. O. P. in 1944.

Listen World!

Don't Be a Dinosaur

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU may think that we are facing the toughest test the world has ever known. Stop kidding yourself. This world has always known such tests, must always know them. They are the fundamental process of life. We must all face them. We must all, inevitably, face Change and Shock and Challenge. Some of us can take these things and survive while others pass out cold the moment their cherished status quo is jolted. Which is, as far as I can see, Nature's way of separating the Sissies from the Solid Citizens.

This sorting process did not begin with man. Before ever his shaggy shadow scrambled out of a cave, the Titans roamed and ruled the world, monsters before whom our greatest flying fortresses would seem as gnats—dinosaur, ichthyosaur, mammoth and giant sloth. For centuries they wallowed in the primeval marshes . . . dominating the manless earch . . . their battle cries shaking the stars. Nothing, seemingly, could break their power. Yet something did . . . something within themselves.

They could not change their minds or their ways.

And so, today, they have passed. Their tale is told. They have no place in our moving life.

The great reptiles perished when the ice cap began to creep down from the frozen North and invade their steaming swamps. They might have saved themselves by moving on . . . adapting themselves to new conditions . . . changing the pattern of their lives. But they could not or would not do it. They could not believe that disaster threatened them . . . and so they were wiped out by their own inability to adapt themselves to changing times and circumstances.

After they all were gone one small creature alone survived. A tiny, rat-like thing, feeble and foolish in appearance. Yet it alone had managed to pass through the terrific travail of change—

Because it had been able to change its mind.

It had taken the challenge in its stride. It had grown hair to armor itself against cold. It had learned to live in caves and eat strange food, and protect its young against unusual peril. That tiny creature was the first mammal.

And you and I are here today because that small creature was willing to change its mind when the earth went through one of its inevitable upheavals and changed the pattern of life for everyone.

We think of this war as something new and novel. It isn't. It's the same old readjustment of life's program . . . the same old sorting of the Sissies from the Solid Citizens . . . the same old struggle to make a new and better pattern for living. And only those who are able to change their minds and adapt themselves to that new pattern will survive its bloody travail.

We will use monstrous new weapons in this struggle but they wil lnot decide the issue. Only our own spirits can decide it. Have you the courage to say goodbye to yesterday and turn your face toward an utterly new tomorrow? Have you the desire to fight for a finer, freer human plan? Have you the initiative to adapt yourself to change and take the breaks as they come?

If you have, you and America will not decide the issue. Only our changing life. If you haven't, if you insist on living and dreaming as you did when a child . . . if you stand around waiting for the good old days to come back . . . you will perish as surely as the dinosauria perished, mired in the deadly bog of their own stubbornness and stupidity. And don't blame the Huns or the Japs if you're among the missing when the final tale is told. You'll have asked for it, dearie.

Navy Call for Expanded 'Blimp' Patrol of Coast Had Close Call

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—All hands are keeping quiet about it, but there was a hot fight in the closed-door session of the senate naval affairs committee over the bill authorizing the navy to acquire an "unlimited number" of blimps for offshore patrolling.

Secretary Frank Knox strongly approved the measure. So did navy air chiefs and other experts. But despite these endorsements and the fact that the serious shipping toll continues unabated, a clique of non-air-minded brasshats fought the bill so strenuously that they almost succeeded in wrecking it.

The battle raged around a brasshat-inspired amendment to limit the number of blimps the navy could acquire.

To the surprise of everyone the amendment was offered by Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa, who usually is an outspoken foe of the brasshats. But on this occasion he rushed into the secret meeting with a breathless announcement that he had just conferred with "some high navy officers" who were of the opinion that blimps were ineffective against submarines.

These officers, Gillette continued, felt that pending further study the number of blimps should be limited. This argument was immediately recognized as an old brasshat dodge that has been repeatedly used to block development of navy air power.

The navy has been experimenting with lighter-than-air ships for many years and probably has the best experts in the world in this field.

"Who are these high navy officers to whom you refer?" Gillette was asked.

The Iowan hemmed and hawed for a few minutes, finally declared, "I am not at liberty to disclose their names."

"Why not?" a committee member demanded.

"It might embarrass them," Gillette replied.

It unquestionably would have embarrassed them because the navy air officers present promptly and bluntly refuted the attacks on the blimp. They asserted that contrary to being ineffective, the blimp was the "natural enemy" of the submarine and has been highly successful in eliminating the sub danger wherever used.

Finally, after a heated argument, the committee took a vote on the brasshat amendment. The result was a 3 to 3 tie, which under the rules defeated the scheme and saved the bill from mutilation.

The three voting for the brasshats were Gillette, Peter Gerry, Rhode Island socialite, and Hiram Johnson, California's petulant isolationist. The antis were Senators Ralph Brewster of Maine, Charles Andrews of Florida, and David I. Walsh of Massachusetts.

Note: During the argument one navy officer brought gasps from the committee when, in reply to a question as to when the navy had decided blimps were effective aginst submarines, he said blithely, "When enemy submarines came to our shores."

Heroic Dutch.

THE herioc Dutch are fighting back grimly at Hitler in Holland.

An underground movement striking at occupation forces and Dutch Nazis has been so effective that the Germans, in a desperate effort to retaliate, arrested 79 Dutchmen, many of them former army officers. Of this group 72 were shot and the other seven imprisoned for life.

Evidence that the underground movement is widespread and that the Nazis and Dutch traitors are afraid of it was publicly revealed in a Hilversum broadcast.

It said: "There are still many people who oppose the new times and who underestimate the strength of the young nations. In particular, the priests and teachers, who call themselves the spiritual leaders of the nation, oppose in overwhelming majority the rebirth of the nation. Without any justification they proclaim themselves representatives of Christendom and they say they are fighting for the benefit of the people."

Another Hilversum broadcast bitterly denounced the Dutch for not volunteering to fight on the Russian front and for "ridiculing and maliciously teasing" boys and girls who join the Nazi youth societies.

Note: The broadcast indicated that the executed patriots had been furnishing information to the British to guide them on their air raids.

He Probably Did.

MOST unusual witness at the hearings of the house banking committee on the Murray small business bill was veteran Representative Hatton W. Sumners of Texas.

"I don't know very much about this bill," began Sumners, "but I'm for it."

With this frank start, Sumners then explained that he didn't want to be questioned about the "economic aspects" of the legislation.

"We have a lot of high-salaried economists in the government who can tell you all about that," he remarked helpfully.

Then, concluding, the Texan floored his listeners with this one: "I hope I haven't left the committee any more confused than I found it."

Veteran's Case.

MORE anecdotes are told about bewhiskered, lion-hunting George Holden Tinkham, veteran Massachusetts Republican representative who is retiring this year, than almost any other member of congress. Here is the latest.

Tinkham was lolling in the Parker House in Boston when Senator Francis T. Maloney of Connecticut came up and began chatting with him. Tinkham was voluble and they conversed for some time, but Maloney saw that Tinkham obviously did not recognize him.

"Mr. Tinkham," said Maloney, "I'll bet you $25 you don't know who I am."

"Oh, yes I do," Tinkham protested, "you are that veteran's case my office wrote me about."

Maloney identified himself and they laughed about it.

A month later Tinkham and Maloney met in the lobby of a Washington hotel. They conversed and again Tinkham showed no sign of recognizing Maloney.

"I'll bet you $100 you don't know who I am," Maloney challenged.

"Yes I do," said Tinkham. "You can't fool me this time. You are that damned veteran's case that has been giving me so much trouble."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Heredity being stronger than environment (all claims to the contrary notwithstanding) your old pal Kay Kyser has yielded to the yen for home cooking—this after more than a decade on the road—and has hired a house in the New Jersey countryside for his month's stay at the Meadowbrook, near Cedar Grove! His mother has come up from Rocky Mount, N. C. to join him, and they say the fragrance of turnip greens, baked hams, turkey, fried chicken and sweet potato pie has been wafted on the breeze over an area of five counties. I aim to be getting over that way myself in a few days and will report on same upon my return.

The Erie railroad passenger cars have a nice little sign these days, but to me is seems slightly misplaced. This sign says, "When Air Raid Warning Comes, Be Calm . . . Keep Away From Open Windows . . . And Don't Reach for the Telephone."

What telephone!

YOU should have seen the expressions on people's faces when the regular Army "took over" Grand Central Station during those maneuvers the other night. Without warning the Army moved in . . . Armed to the teeth . . . This movement was coordinated with the police force and the State Guard . . . When the alert came the guard mobilized, then relieved the troops of the regular Army who moved on to more pressing assignments. The motive of the alert was to see how quickly vital or key points to the city could be manned by troops. When the Army arrived the people in the station hardly knew what to think. You couldn't blame them. They didn't know whether the enemy had arrived at Hoboken in force, or whether Goering's Raiders were expected.

THERE used to be a place on 45th street that made history in more ways than one during the prohibition era. A speak—as so many of the present day restaurants were then—where you had to be a somebody before you could even buy a glass a beer (for $1.) This spot was lucky enough to escape the shootings that were prevalent then, and when Repeal came, its good name intact, it opened as a restaurant. One night I dropped by there with Walter Juardell, a newspaperman now in South America. At one table were four men, and on the wall were their pictures . . . These men were leading figures in the theatrical and sports world. Last night, more out of curiosity, I went there again. Only two customers were having dinner. The same waiters, grown old, were standing around. Those four pictures were still there, and I noticed that they had been turned to the wall. You didn't have to ask why. All four were dead. They were Osgood Perkins, Florenz Ziegfeld, John McGraw, and Rudolph Valentino.

A Farmer's Diary

Fitting and Planting

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE farmers have been busy several weeks, plowing for corn the sod from which they harvested hay last year. Clover and timothy turf adds humus and fertility to the soil.

Today I stood at the end of a long well-plowed field. The clay was mixed with loam which gave the surface a rich dark appearance . . . The furrows fitted against each other evenly, like strands of gigantic braided rug. Merely plowing it had made a deep moist fragrant cushion of fertile earth. It was an artistic job, and would come to fulfillment in an autumn harvest of long straight rows of shocks and piles of golden grain, I had no doubt.

The next day I saw the farmer standing rather insecurely upon a heavy plank drag, steadying himself with the lines as the dark gray team walked along. Before him was the corrugated surface of upturned furrows, behind him a wider, smoother track of crumbled soil. Next day he used the disk harrow, and when the field had been covered he started on a diagonal course with a heavy steel land roller. After three days of preparation, the field was firm and fine enough for planting.

Early one morning I saw him unloading fertilizer and piling bags of it at short intervals along one end of the field. Then he hitched to the two row corn planter, filled each hopper with certified seed corn—from a bag so labeled—and drove to the field again, where he poured fertilizer into the large hoppers just behind where the corn was placed.

He check rowed his corn. The large spool of knotted wire was adjusted properly and a steel rod driven firmly into the ground. The space between knots on the unfolding wire was the distance between corn hills. The driver fixed his eyes upon a stake at the distant end of the field, and drove straight toward it. His aim was splendid and the two first rows were very straight.

On an adjacent farm, another farmer did all the necessary work in less than one-third the time. He too was planting corn, but his planter was bolted beneath the front and rear wheels of his tractor. His land was just as thoroughly done—much time and heavy labor saved.

Horses, for heavy tortuous labor, are passing from the farm scene more each year. Tractors, cooperatively owned, as threshers and corn huskers often are, may presently be servicing whole neighborhoods.

There are two kinds of "soup" vital to America's victory. One consists of molten metals "cooked" in huge crucibles at high temperatures in the steel plants of the nation. These metals become fighting tanks, ships, shells, and guns. The other is a soup of vitamins, minerals, proteins and other food values cooked in the kitchens of the land. These "vittles" go to build strong bodies, clear minds, healthy men, women and children.
Uncle Sam needs both "soups" in unprecedented quantities to win this war. Now we are supplying gas to serve both uses. Dependable, flexible, efficient gas service is in demand as never before in home and factory.
Yes, today, gas is "doing double duty" — serving the home front and the industrial front — shouldering a double responsibility with a single purpose, to help win the war.

Furlough Bridal Gowns Shown

Left, garden bridal dress; right, formal wedding gown; center, two-piece bridal ensemble.

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

Every week-end from now on will be a time of weddings. Many young brides who in other seasons would have waited to have a June wedding, are now planning to have furlough weddings on the first week-end that their service men bridegrooms can get time off from training.

There are many different types of furlough weddings. Some are just as formal as pre-war ceremonies. They consist of traditional bridal clothes, bridesmaids and dress uniforms. Others are afternoon weddings and are of the garden variety And still others are informal weddings, with the bride wearing a traveling suit.

The type of wedding planned is usually decided by how much leave the groom is able to get from his camp, ship or flying field. If he is lucky enough to have several weeks, then there is time for a big wedding with a reception, but if he only has a few days the wedding is usually a simple affair.

The three above pictures show the formal wedding dress, the flower garden dress, and the two-piece ensemble. They were all designed by Tailored Woman, and were exhibited at a fashion show at the Waldorf.

Pan-American Influence.

The Pan-American influence is evident in the dramatically formal gown. It is three-tiered and made of organza. The sweetheart neckline, the long, leg-o'mutton sleeves and the sweeping three-yard train, lend a romantic air of regalness to the important occasion. And literally crowning it all is a cupcake coronet of tiny pearls and a flowing veil of imported illusion.

The quaint flower garden bride selects an informal dress of cotton Dalmatian sheer, with a graceful bell-shaped silhouette and 18-inch sweep. The low square decolletege and short sleeves are edged with ruffles of Chantilly lace. To top it all off the bride wears a wreath of field daisies with a finger-tip veil of daisy yellow illusion.

The marry-in-haste bride chooses a two-piece ensemble in victory blue virgin wool crepe, with blue and white striped Ducharne silk lapels and cuffs. The Renoir hat of victory blue Milan repeats the striped motiff in bow loops and brim facing.

Father Invokes Class Barriers For Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My father is a history teacher in a university. There are four other children besides myself, and we don't have much money. Father is a perfect dear, but has no idea of how to take care of money.

"Mother, on the contrary, is a genius and can do all sorts of things on practically nothing a year. She makes over our clothes, has the best meals on the inexpensive cuts, and even helps out by making pies for the bakery in our town. Everybody on the campus laughingly tells mother she can get a wonderful dinner party on just a bacon skin and a handful of spinach.

"There are three of us girls and we all want to 'take to the road' and earn our own living so we can get away from home, but we stay on mother's account. She's so understanding and sympathetic.

"I'm 19 and am very much in love with a boy of 21 who works on a farm nearby. But Father won't hear of it, though the boy has a splendid background and good prospects. Dad thinks I'd be marrying beneath me, because I'm an assistant professor's daughter.

"Mother likes Don, my fiance, just as she stood back of sister when she took a job, which father considered too 'lowly.' My oldest sister married just to get away from father, and she is now back home with her little son, having left her husband. So we have turmoil in the house all the time. Mother trying to hold things together and Father with his head in a book all the time.

"I left home the other day and stayed with my fiance's relatives, who own the farm. I was pretty angry with my father. The young man's family all like me and would like me to come into their family.

"Would it be all right for me to announce my engagement, and get married at once? My fiance is likely to be called in the draft and thinks we could get married before he leaves. Do you think I should stay at home and put up with things as they are? Mother is all broken up about this affair but is willing to stand by me, whatever I decide. This is the first time she has ever given up, so I'm coming to you.

"Perplexed."

When I get a letter like the above, I wonder whether we're still living in the Victorian Age, or whether it's 1942.

My dear, the best thing to do would be to announce your engagement to the young man and then marry him as soon as you conveniently can.

Don't dramatize your troubles; slip through them as quietly as possible. I've always thought it would be well if there were a companion adage to "Least said, soonest mended," which would read "Least done, soonest forgotten."

You might be married from the church in your best street dress. If you're not going on a wedding trip, go directly to the place where you intend to live. I'm glad that the owners of the farm approve of you. You've also your mother on your side. The best of luck to both of you!

ALL WOOL IN AN OCEAN WIDE

A new all-wool coat might cost $85. Have last year's cleaned, sew up the rips in the fur collar. Save that $85—buy War Bonds. $85 will buy a set of small signal flags to provide means for visual signaling between units of a motor torpedo boat squadron. Wear your old clothes. Your state has a Bond Quota. We've got a war to win!

MODERN JEWELRY

Fifty cents would buy a piece of metal costume jewelry, but costume jewelry made of metal will be scarce. If you have a box full of it in your dresser drawer, polish up the old and wear it—for that fifty cents, put into a War Savings stamp, would buy enough fuel oil to permit a destroyer to cruise one mile seeking out a Japanese target. And to defeat the Japs, remember that each state must meet its War Bond quota.

Shall Girls Marry Men In Uniform?

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

A GREAT many young women are marrying men in uniform. What are the risks for these girls?

The War, Navy and Air Departments assume it is better for the efficiency of the armed forces for all men in it to be single. They discourage marriage among commissioned officers during war time and forbid it among enlisted men. Administration of selective service tends to defer the services of men who have been married for some years, especially of fathers.

This program is in consideration for the dependents. Moreover, many leaders in our armed forces say that married men don't, as a rule, make as good soldiers as single men. Separation from their loved ones and constant concern about sufficient money for their care and protection tend to weaken morale in many married soldiers.

Restriction Evaded.

Commissioned officers and those about to volunteer, or be drafted as enlisted men, evade the restrictions of the armed forces, and marry. Hundreds and hundreds of them have been taking wives.

The big risk in the widest sense is not with the man-in-uniform who marries but rather with the girl who marries him; and the consequent hardships might fall not only on her but her parents and an unborn child. It seems to me it is hardly in the spirit of self-sacrifice which his service in the armed forces requires that he should insist on a girl's marrying him now.

Factors Involved.

Whether the girl should choose to marry, if the man is willing, would seem to depend on a number of factors such as how long they have gone together and really loved each other, how sure she is that he is the man for her, how grown up she is emotionally, how self-reliant, and how secure economically she would be should he not return after the war. Though the economic perils should be less to commissioned officers who marry while in the service or on entering it, the foregoing factors would be similar.

About the least responsibility a married service man should shoulder is to take out the largest possible amount of war risk insurance for his wife's protection. The savings he must effect each month to pay for this will be one way of

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I'M NOT GOING to do anything myself," I told Jack Bickett. "My part ends when you and my father meet each other."

His grin was gone now, and his eyes were coldly challenging.

"Have you gone mad?" he demanded. "Do you imagine I will go into your hotel looking like this? My disguise did all right up here in the wilds where I saw virtually no one, but can you imagine the comment I would excite in a hotel? Comment and suspicion aroused are things I cannot risk. My life will be forfeit if my identity is discovered. Will you kindly think what you are doing?"

"I am thinking," I retorted "which is more than you are doing, or you would know that I am just as much interested in preserving your incognito as you can possibly be. As nearly as we can find out, the gangsters who are holding Marion are doing so simply because they see a chance of discovering your whereabouts through intimidation of her family."

Jack Asks a Question.

"You said that before," Jack commented a bit impatiently, "when you thought I was 'Charles.' I could not answer you then, but I want to know now why they should contact Marion. How would she be supposed to know anything about me?"

"Before I answer that," I said suavely, "I never have thought you were 'Charles'—not from my first sight of you."

I felt that I was speaking the literal truth. I had not known him to be my long lost brother-cousin, but I had been sure he was not merely a servant of Professor Diswell.

He stared at me incredulously.

"You mean you knew me through all this welter?" He gestured to his unkempt, straggling hair and beard.

"Is that so astounding?" I countered evasively. "Your disguise is a clever one, I admit, and would deceive any casual eye, but not those of close friends or relatives who know you. Do you think for an instant that Katherine's eyes would not penetrate your disguise?"

Painful Reminder.

A spasm of pain crossed his face.

"Katherine!" he murmured brokenly, and then to my relief he dropped the question of my recognition of him into his mental wastebasket, from which I hoped he would never recover it. I had made my point; had pricked his bubble of amusement over my failure to recognize him, and had relished maliciously his momentary chagrin. That was more than enough for me, considering the false premise of my assertion that I had known him all the time.

"Katherine!" he said again. "How is she? And is she not in danger from these people who are trying to get hold of me? I should think she would be the one they would try to get hold of, not Marion."

"They are very well informed—the leaders of this gang," I said coldly, "and they evidently know, like all the rest of your world, that Katherine would be the last person on earth to know of your whereabouts.

"So they got hold of Marion, first, because of certain circumstances which are not yet clear to us. It was easier for them to contact her than it was anyone else in our group. And second because, knowing the resources of the Underwoods and my father, they counted upon their moving Heaven and earth to find you in order to ransom Marion."

Neglect of Katherine.

He had not heard the last part of my tirade, for it literally was that. I knew it by the expression in his eyes—bewildered, angry, frightened. And he hardly gave me a chance to finish before demanding:

"What do you mean by that speech, and by what you said before about Katherine not hearing from me? How long has it been since she had a letter from me?"

I looked at him, trying to make my face and voice impartial, but failing signally because of my long pent in indignation against him for his inexplicable neglect of Katherine.

"You ought to be able to answer that question," I countered. "When did you last write her?"

Eggs Are Rich In Many Vitamins

By BETSY NEWMAN

EGGS COME under the heading of "protective" foods. They contain valuable minerals and vitamins. The yolk is one of the best sources of protein, a body-building element. Young children need at least 4 or 5 eggs a week, older members of the family may well eat 3 to 5 eggs a week. If possible each member of a family should have an egg a day.

Today's Menu.

Scalloped Eggs and Macaroni
Buttered Beets
Mixed Green Salad—Cabbage, Celery Tops, Watercress, etc.
Baked Bananas and Rhubarb
Tea

Scalloped Eggs and Macaroni.

6 hard-cooked eggs
2 cups cooked macaroni
2 cups white sauce
½ teaspoon chopped onion
½ cup grated cheese (optional)
1 cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoons melted fat

Wash eggs and cook at simmering temperature for 30 minutes, cool and cut into quarters. Mix cooked macaroni with white sauce, add onion and grated cheese; add eggs and pour into a greased baking dish. Mix bread crumbs with melted fat and spread over the top. Bake in moderate oven until crumbs are brown. Serves 6.

Baked Bananas and Rhubarb.

2 lbs. rhubarb
4 ripe bananas
½ cup sugar
½ cup corn or maple syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Select tender rhubarb, wash well and cut in 2-inch pieces without removing the red skin. Peel and scrape bananas and split lengthwise. In a greased shallow baking dish place a layer of rhubarb, add banana halves, and then remaining rhubarb, sprinkle with salt and sugar and pour syrup over all, dot with fat and bake in moderate oven for 20 minutes, or until fruit is tender. Remove cover and continue to cook for 30 minutes, or until syrup has thickened. Serve either hot or cold. Serves 6.

* * *

Orange Tapioca.

1½ cups water
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup quick-cooking tapioca
1 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
½ cup irradiated evaporated milk or
½ cup cream
½ tablespoon lemon juice

Bring water, sugar, orange juice with the grated rind and salt to a boil in top of double boiler; add tapioca and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly. Put over boiling water and cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool. Whip milk or cream, add lemon juice and fold into pudding. Serves 6.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, May 13.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

MODERATE SUCCESS and fair fortune may be looked for on this day probably beyond the fondest expectations. While there may be difficult and adverse situations to manipulate by common sense and sound methods and dogged application and shrewdness, yet the determining factor may arise from unexpected sources. Perhaps slight changes may turn the trick, but refrain from drastic action, which might beget some sort of public or group annoyance and frustration.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a successful and gratifying year. In spite of conflicting situations or public opposition or antipathy there may be surprising developments of favorable influence, likewise coming from a group, community or friendly source. But refrain from provocative or drastic action, and employ sound logic, hard work and practical efforts in most critical corners. Sudden and unexpected solutions may arise. It would be wise to read and sign documents or writings with caution.

A child born on this day should have contradictory traits, with much reserve, dignity, and sound motives and methods, yet may be impelled by overwrought or emotional behavior, thus antagonizing needful and vital support.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

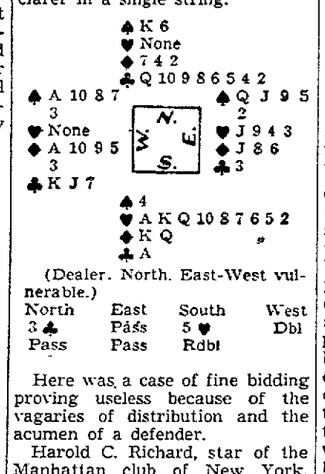
"The Authority on Authorities"

DOUBLING DEDUCTIVELY

Insisting upon having a probable defensive trick in the trump suit, before you decide to make a business double, is a pretty good rule as a generality. Sometimes, though, it pays to go to the other extreme and double on a bunch of side strength if you reckon that your partner may be able to take a trump trick. The limit of this reasoning is found when you have not a solitary trump in your hand, and consequently know that your partner has all of the defensive trumps bunched against the declarer in a single string.



(Dealer. North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
3 ♣	Pass	5 ♥	Dbl
Pass	Pass	Rdbl

Here was a case of fine bidding proving useless because of the vagaries of distribution and the acumen of a defender.

Harold C. Richard, star of the Manhattan club of New York, made that sound effort to shut out the opponents with his opener of 3-Clubs, and his partner made an equally clever bid by calling 5-Hearts for two purposes. One was to make it hard for the opponents to overcall in spades if one of them had a long string, and the other was to make sure that his partner would go to 6-Hearts if he happened to hold a blank suit and a couple of hearts.

Their fine work proved a boomerang when C. Edward Van Vleck, jr., great defensive bidder of the Whist club, reasoned that he probably could take two tricks, and there was a great chance his partner could get one in trumps, especially since his own double might make the declarer misplay. South of course, could not resist the temptation to redouble.

It is not difficult to see how easy it was to set this contract by taking two aces and then waiting until South had to give East a heart trick.

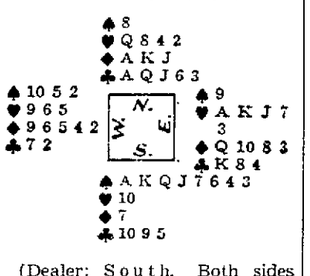
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If, when the heart 9 is led, a garrulous East remarks, "Here's one you won't make," how should South play this deal for 6-Spades, after the heart K is led to the second trick?

CASEY JONES IS SAILOR NOW

So Uncle Bill gave Johnnie five dollars for his birthday. He wants an electric train, you say? They're scarce now, for Uncle Sam needs the precious metal. Perhaps Johnnie is old enough to understand, if you tell him that $5.00 put into a War Savings stamp would buy a sailor a raincoat to wear on cold and windy nights when he's standing watch for a Japanese warship lurking just over the sea's horizon. And closer to home, Johnnie will be proud to know that he is contributing to his country's War Bond quota.

Mashed bananas and chopped salted peanuts, in equal portions, with a little lemon juice added, make a nutritious and appetizing filler for graham bread sandwiches.

Child Health Is Vital To U. S. Victory

By ADELAIDE KERR

(Wide World Features Writer)

DR. LEONA BAUMGARTNER, director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the New York City Department of Health, thinks healthy American children are essential to winning the war and maintaining the peace.

"There is every probability that the war will be long and peace difficult to win and hard to maintain," she says. "Unless we have good healthy stock, we can't do it. But even if the war should last only two years the health of children is still extremely important, for sickly children will disturb the parents and divert their activities from the war effort.

"In spite of the war it is perfectly posible to have healthier children now than before, if we make up our minds to it. In the first place we must prevent war jitters by setting an example of calmness, poise and honesty for them to follow. In the second place they must have first class physical care.

Lots of people are having their cars carefully reserviced; I wonder how many are giving the same care to the 'upkeep' of their children. There is no better birthday present to a child this year than regular visits to the doctor and dentist. Children should be vaccinated for smallpox and immunized to diphtheria before they are a year old. In addition to that they need a booster dose of diphtheria toxoid some time later. Parents should be particularly careful about children's visits to doctors and dentists now, because soon there may be a dearth of both, due to the fact that they will have been called into service."

A Million Children.

Dr. Baumgartner (Ph. D. and M. D., Yale University) is a pediatrician of note. The bureau she now heads supervises the care of more than 1,000,000 children of school age and 90,000 under school age every year.

"American children are much healthier now than they used to be, and more babies live to grow up," she says. "In 1915 out of every 1,000 live births in this country 100 babies died in the first year. In 1940 in the same number of live births, only 47 died.

"The health of children should be one of the first concerns of a community, yet there are people today who refuse to contribute to community funds used for that purpose because they are 'contributing everything to war bonds."

Elsa Rogo, California-born painter and art teacher, believes "children plus paint can contribute materially to the betterment of international relations and understandings." (Miss Rogo is now exhibiting in New York children's paintings done by her classes in Mexico and Vermont.)

"By painting and sending their paintings back and forth, children of different countries can jump language barriers, and show each other the world in which they live," she says. "Then, when they grow up they feel more friendliness and understanding for each other.

"American children are showing more interest in painting than formerly. Among them there is talent to turn out great masterpieces if they are properly trained and stimulated. Children have already made a great contribution to art. Matisse, Picasso and Klee have been much influenced by the simplicity and freshness of approach of children's paintings, and by children's tendency to paint an idea rather than just an object."

FICTION MAKES HIT WITH BOYS IN ICELAND

U. S. Soldiers in the Market For Thriller Type Magazines.

(By United Press)

AMERICAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Iceland—Here is a sure-fire way to make a hit with the average soldier in Iceland:

Send him plenty of bang-bang, six-shootin' fiction, pictures of lightly clad girls, boxes of candy and cookies and phonograph records heavy with hot licks.

But don't bother to send cigarets, soap, shaving cream, razor blades and other traditional soldier gifts. The boys can buy those necessities in their post exchanges cheaper than in retail stores at home.

The boys guarding this rain-soaked lava pile in the north Atlantic don't want intellectual and moral uplift in the packages from home They want entertainment and the "homey" touch

The American Red Cross, backed by large funds, is doing excellent welfare and recreation work among the troops. But there is ample room for additional small gifts that can help make the soldier's life a bit more like that at home.

Numerous unsolicited gifts of all kinds have been received from persons and organizations, some anonymous The Iceland base command morale officer has distributed them among the various camps.

Army chaplains and morale workers who get a close-up view of what pleases the soldiers have contributed a list of suggestions for relatives and well-wishers in sending gifts Probably the same list could be applied in other foreign outposts where American boys are stationed

This is how the gift situation lines up·

Books and magazines—The boys like their reading matter rough and ready, of the western, detective and adventure thriller types.

There already are plenty of copies of the mass circulation magazines and the average private would rather have a couple of romantic novels than a half dozen volumes of "literature"

Nissen huts have acres of wall space waiting for magazine pictures of girls who weren't dressed for an Icelandic winter when the photographer dropped around. There aren't many girls for the troops up there, so most of the boys must be satisfied with pictures.

Phonograph records -Always a market for the dance tune platters, the hotter the better Records take a beating when played over and over They cost more than $1 in Reykjavik and hardly can be called "new" If the gift is on a big scale, a portable phonograph is a good idea

Food—No one in Iceland has heard of the corner drug store or hamburger stand, and the army doesn't exactly encourage sneaking a snack from the camp icebox So the soldier who receives a box of candy or hard cookies—the soft ones crumble in shipping—is a popular lad

Candy bars can be purchased in limited quantities in the post exchanges, but there is something mighty cheerful about a box of home made candy that can't be found in a box of chocolate bars

Games—Lots of them here, but the boys always welcome more if they are in fairly good condition

Britain's Colonel Britton Hopes to Drive Naxis Nutzie With These Cartoons

Ohio Youths Prefer Guns To Hoes, Upset Farm Army Plans

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Although Ohio youths apparently prefer guns to hoes, Agriculture Director John T Brown predicted yesterday Buckeye farmers still would be able to find enough boys to carry out the July wheat harvest successfully

The Ohio war agriculture committees' efforts to recruit a farm "army" from colleges and high schools have not been as successful as anticipated but still will meet the farm help need this summer, Brown declared.

"The interest of the students in the cities and the county seats, in the solution of this problem, has been very gratifying The rural youths have been holding back, possibly because of their intention of working on their own farms," Brown said

About 9,000 Ohio farmers of 60,000 who received questionnaires from the committee replied they would need some help this summer.

"The need for farm labor has not gone far enough to become an acute problem," Brown reported. "I feel that the farmers will take the boys who want the work and are willing to offer their services. This need will develop gradually during the harvest season.

"The farmers have a general feeling that the city youth may not have an understanding of the farm problems. I would take any city boy who wants to work, is willing and qualified — I would take him and show him a good time while he is learning."

No results have been announced from the campaign to enroll youths for farm work although Brown reported progress. The Ohio war agriculture committee secured Ray T. Kelsey, editor of the Ohio Farmer, to direct the work.

Praising Kelsey highly and reporting full co-operation from the state education department and the Association of Colleges, Brown indicated war industry work and armed force service held more attraction for boys than did wheat harvesting and corn plowing

Kelsey's work will prove more valuable later in the year with further expansion of the armed forces, Brown said

"That is when the problem will become more acute, and that is when Mr Kelsey's work will prove invaluable," he declared

10 DAYS NEEDED TO END STREET RAIL REMOVALS

Balance of Project Will Be Carried Out By Hand Labor, Director Says.

Mansfield's street car removal program is nearly completed but the withdrawal of machinery needed to pull up abandoned trolley rails will postpone the termination of the project.

Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said today that the Pollak Steel company, which holds the contract for the removal of the tracks, had removed its rail pulling machine to a similar project at New Castle, Pa., and that the work here will be completed by hand labor.

Wolff said that the steel company had less than a half mile of track to remove in the city and that it was expected that another 10 days would be needed to do it. Previously, it was estimated that the work would be finished this week.

Employes of the steel company have removed more than 400 tons of steel in the five and half miles of track pulled from city streets so far. At present, they are working on South Main street near Lexington avenue.

After the South Main street tracks are removed, the rail-removers will have only two short sections left to take up in the city. One section is located on Main street at the southwestern corner of the square and the other is on Park avenue west near Linden road.

House Gets Army-Navy Pay Raise Plans

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT M'KENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

The heavy German attack in the Crimea probably represents an effort to drive an entering wedge to enable Herr Hitler to embark on his delayed spring offensive through the gateway to the Caucasus where lie the seas of oil on which he yearns to float to glory.

The four-day-old battle is still under way, but the business-like manner in which the Reds reportedly have flung the enemy back is a further demonstration that the Muscovites are swinging into this critical year with great striking power.

The Reds' persistent attacks against the uneasy German line throughout the winter certainly are making the going tough for Herr Hitler's spring drive.

These Red tactics of beating the German offensive by not letting it get started may have a decisive effect on the trend of the fighting, and that is to say on the outcome of the war. If the Muscovites can continue to prevent another blitzkrieg from getting under way, they will have gone far towards beating the man who would rule the world.

Despite the terrific lacing which he took from the Russians last winter, Hitler has managed to hang onto his main strategic positions along the general defensive line.

However, while Hitler still has these strategic positions he has been unable thus far to utilize them.

Meanwhile a host of Russian civilians behind the German lines are conducting bloody guerrilla warfare against the invaders. The damage done by these irregulars is enormous.

However, while Hitler hasn't yet got fully under way we mustn't be foolish enough to think that he is finished. He still is powerful and when he finally gets his strength into play we likely shall see some of the force of former springs.

Speaking For Myself.

I am not a member of Alfred Lunt's cooking class, but I do wish I had time to enroll, spend a few hours with Alfred over a hot stove, and learn how to concoct eggs Amphytrion, or guinea hen a la Guardsman. Swaping frying pans with the noted actor, I might also get an opportunity to ask a couple of questions which have been bothering me a little. I would like to know for instance, who prepares dinner back in Genessee Depot, Wis.—Alfred or Lynn Fontanne? Does she ever say, 'Alfred dear, I never want to see bouillabaise again as long as I live. Please give me a hamburger for dinner!" And who does the dishes?

Well, the Pulitzer boys and the drama critics finally agreed on the play situation—or rather the "no play" situation — even if it did take the worst theatrical season since the flood to bring about the miracle. I imagine many a first nighter is somewhat upset by the lack of diference of poinon between these two boards, because lack of difference of opinion between-acts conversation periods devoted to putting the blast on the hapless Columbia solons . . . If there were any doubt in anyone's mind that vaudeville is back with a bang, it could be dispelled at once by the sight (in "Harlem Cavalcade") of one funnyman poking another funnyman with a pig-bladder, a slice of roughneck comedy that hasn't been on view since the good old days.

I wish some authoritative body would decide whether it's "rashoning" or rayshoning," as long as it seems here to stay. The people I overhear are split 50-50 on the pronunciation . . . I wonder if the staff of the new Stars and Stripes Forever, the A. E. F.'s newspaper in North Ireland, will produce literary celebrities for the next generation. Didn't the Stars and Stripes of World War I have for contributors such snappy word-slingers as Harold Ross and Alexander Wollcott? . . . Have you noticed how close the tune of "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree" comes to the old song, "Long, Long Ago?" Just different tempo, that's all . . . I haven't noticed the usual sprouting of the sidewalk cafes this year. What is it, the war?

* * *

The news commentators seem to have settled down to a tone of voice denoting cool efficiency, a sharp contrast to the alarmist delivery they featured in the reporting of war bulletins around 1939 and early 1940 . . . It seems funny to me that Shirley Temple, having been trained as an actress since she was old enough to talk, shouldn't have a pleasanter speaking voice. Right now, she sounds a bit like the wrong-side-of-the-tracks . . . I wish Hollywood would make another film like "Here Comes Mr. Jordan." That stands out in my mind as one of the three best pictures I've ever seen . . . I think there is a very bright side to all this rationing. If you don't have sugar you don't lose your waistline; if you can't have an electric toaster you don't burn the toast; if you can't drive a car, you never get a flat tire. Why, it's wonderful!

* * *

I was in the El Storko the other evening when Arthur Treacher popped in for a quick nightcap, and as he passed the hat check counter he let out a loud exclamation of delight and cried out: "I say, Christopher! I am glad to see you!" Anyone would have turned to look, expecting at least Christopher Morley, if not Treacher's long lost brother—but it was just Jack Pearl's little dog, sitting wagging his tail in the coat room . . . I'm happy to know that the 2nd Ave., "El" is about to come down to be converted into munitions, but I rather hope that the Little Flower will allow one elevated station to remain somewhere in the air over one of our street corners, just as a relic of open-air transit.

MACHINE TOOL INDUSTRY MEETS WAR CHALLENGE

One Plant Turns Out as Much In Week as It Did In Whole of 1932.

(By United Press)

CINCINNATI — The machine tool industry has met the challenge of war by expanding plants and personnel, subcontracting parts and working longer hours.

Judging by the performance of the R. K. Leblond Machine Tool company, whose officials said produces the biggest part of machinery in this country for boring, rifling and turning artillery up to 155 mm., the industry has met the challenge well.

The Leblond plant, having swung over completely from making tools for automobile production to tools for making weapons, turns out as much work in a week now as it did in the entire year of 1932. Its volume in 1941 was 75 per cent greater than it was in 1940, and it will be 100 per cent more this year than it was in 1941.

Newspapermen, touring the Leblond plant and the Cincinnati Milling Machine company's works —believed to be the largest producer of machine tools in the world—under the sponsorship of the National Association of Manufacturers, found vast batteries of grinding, turning, planing and boring tools.

Frederick C. Geier, president of the Cincinnati Milling Machine company, said the load on the machine tool industry depended on the military situation.

"Every time the United Nations lose something, the United States gets a fresh industrial load to bear," he said.

Geier said the machine tool industry entered the war under a handicap. Industry had been through a decade of malnutrition and had not replaced equipment, so when the United States began to rearm, the machine tool industry had to replace obsolescent equipment, as well as do a war job.

Leblond said his company was facing a labor shortage, although his men were working 58 hours weekly, and top men are making $75 to $100 a week.

GET RATIONS

Eastern Motorists Begin To Sign Up For Gasoline.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — While the vanguard of the eastern seaboard's 8,500,000 motorists flocked to schools to sign up for gasoline ration cards today, OPA officials anxiously awaited complete "returns" to determine whether the available supply of gasoline will cover the demand.

Price Administration representatives said that it will be at least two weeks before they are able to determine the basic allotment of three gallons per week will be left unchanged, trimmed to only two gallons, or perhaps raised to four or five gallons a week.

BOSTON — (INS) — Vacationland began registering for gasoline rationing today with the realization that the billion dollar New England tourist business faced virtual elimination for the duration.

FBI PROBING TRAIN WRECK

Seek Evidence in Burning of Freight Train; Brakeman Hurt.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — While John Schaffer, 30, of Bellevue, O., lay seriously injured in Charity hospital, FBI agents today investigated the burning of a Nickel Plate railroad freight train which jumped the tracks a mile south of Cleveland's union terminal.

Schaffer, the brakeman, suffered a crushed right foot and internal injuries when he was pinned under the wreckage of the locomotive, tender and nine cars of the 68-car train. He was extricated by use of an acetylene torch.

The train was traveling about 20 miles an hour when the crash and fire occurred. The tender, five gasoline tank cars and box cars burst into flames at the impact.

A flattened track spike was the only clue which investigators admitted finding.

Six months ago another freight train left the rails at approximately the same place, the locomotive plunging over an embankment.

Two other crew members of the train escaped serious injury when they jumped from the locomotive cab just before the derailment. They were Engineer J. H. Foster and Fireman W. P. York, both of Conneaut.

FATHER WON'T NEED SO MANY PRAMS—IT'S ONLY TRIPLETS

(By International News Service)

ABINGDON, England — Mrs. Emily Woodley disappointed the populace of Berkshire today when she gave birth to triplets instead of the quintuplets which had been anticipated.

The three babies are all boys.

Disclosure that the expected birth of quintuplets had not come to pass went especially hard on the residents of Culham, home village of the Woodleys, who had hoped their hamlet might become as famous as Callender, Ontario, where the Dionne quintuplets were born.

The baby boys arrived on the birthday of their brother John who was born May 12, 1937, the day on which the coronation of King George VI took place.

The mother and her three children were said to be doing well.

The prospective father had been given a special leave from the Army to be nearby when his wife was admitted to the hospital in Abingdon. At least his worries about where to find five perambulators in a country where baby carriages have become almost a rarity has been reduced somewhat.

Dr. J. H. Fisher, Mrs. Woodley's physician, had studied Dr. Alan Roy Dafoe's history of the Dionne quintuplets to be fully prepared to deliver five babies.

Laff-a-Day

"A man of war and two destroyers!"

The pictures of the Ralph Stanton family which appeared in Life magazine several weeks ago started a correspondence between C. A. Burrows, Harmarville, Pa., and C. W. Lindeman, 517 West Fourth street, who were friends here many years ago and had lost track of each other. An item in this column mentioning that Burrows had written to the Stantons about the pictures brought the former Mansfielder a letter from Lindeman who received a long letter in reply two days ago. In his letter, Burrows said he had also heard from Frank X. Yeager, 48 South Diamond street, who remembered helping to shoe Burrows' oxen when the Pennsylvania resident came through Mansfield in 1904 driving six oxen to the St. Louis world fair.

Children of Country Day school kindergarten learned how to make themselves at home in a hotel yesterday when they were escorted through the Mansfield-Leland by Manager J Reynolds Hodgson. The youngsters went through the procedure of registering just like a regular guest, were shown to several rooms, taught how to use the telephone when they wanted to make calls and instructed in various forms of hotel etiquette. They also visited the kitchen and saw food preparations underway and while in the coffee shop were served refreshments through the courtesy of the management.

VINSON ASKS BOOSTS ONLY FOR DURATION

House Starts Debate as Its Committee Considers Bill For Dependent Aid.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The 11th-hour proposal by Rep. Vinson, (D., Ga.) to make army-navy pay increases effective only for the war's duration drew scattered support today as the house took up this measure and the companion pay allotment bill.

The Edmiston bill providing allowances for dependents of men in the service camp up before the house military affairs committee with Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt as the first scheduled witness.

At the same time, the pay bill was carried to the floor for debate. Vinson's announced intention to offer an amendment making the measure apply only until the end of the war injected a new issue into the situation.

Vinson said that an army of 8,000,000 men and a navy of 1,000,000 is contemplated. Because of this huge striking force, he declared, this is "no time" to enact legislation setting a permanent pay scale for the armed forces.

Rep. May (D., Ky.), chairman of the military affairs committee which reported the pay-boost bill as a permanent revision, was "inclined to agree" with Vinson. Rep. Faddis (D., Pa.), was similarly disposed. Vinson himself did not foresee much opposition.

"I think congress will adopt it," he said.

But Rep. Kilday, (D., Texas) observed:

"I don't know any reason why pay increases should be temporary—unless we go ahead and get it taken care of now, it never will be rectified. The American people don't get much interest in their army and navy until they are fighting a war."

The bill increases base pay of enlisted men, second lieutenants and ensigns and boosts allowances for three higher grades.

Most members appeared to be agreed that the Edmiston measure to provide support for the dependents of service men and thus open the door for a broader draft pool would pass the house. The main issue cited was whether the war department or the federal security administrator should administer the act. McNutt would assume that authority as the bill now stands.

Miller Looms As Possible Entry In Governor Race

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Democratic party leaders from Ohio's metropolitan areas met here today amid indications that Ray T. Miller, former Cleveland mayor and Cuyahoga county party chairman, might become a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

Miller said he would attend but at the same time asserted he had "no interest" in becoming a candidate.

Informed persons said there was little satisfaction among urban conferees over the candidacy of former Congressman John McSweeney of Wooster, and that Miller might be the man to put into the field.

Besides McSweeney, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, former State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley and Frank Dye of Columbus already have announced for the nomination.

On the eve of the meeting Mrs. Mildred Jaster, Ohio's national Democratic committeewoman, announced in Cleveland she would seek the nomination as representative from the 22nd congressional district. She will oppose State Senator James Metzenbaum, who announced recently he would seek the seat.

Mrs. Frances P. Bolton, a Republican, now represents the district.

A busy man is James L. Lymper, the old Illini recently named football and baseball coach at Galion high school. In addition to these chores, he's also assistant basketball coach.

These duties he should take in stride, but this is only the beginning of the program of work he has cut out for himself.

A one-time captain of the University of Illinois baseball team, and a leading hitter in the Big Ten, Lymper also is managing and playing shortstop and leading off for the Galion entry in the new Ohio State semi-pro league.

And still this is not the extent of his activities in the sports world.

Last week he was named promanager of the Galion Country club. Now most golfers are aware of the duties of a pro, and know that Lymper would be busy enough with that job alone, but that word manager is just about the pay-off in his search for a summer without boredom.

He's to operate the clubhouse, have charge of the tennis courts, and arrange recreational activities for children of the members.

So, if some day you hear of Lympin' Jimmy Lymper, you'll know the reason why. Just one of those jobs would have me bow-legged.

* * *

Another busy guy in the sports world not too far from Mansfield is Chuck Imel, down at Kenyon college in Gambier.

Chuck came to Kenyon from Case in Cleveland several years ago as swimming coach and publicity director, and assistant football coach.

In a year or two he also became baseball coach, and last winter he added the duties of basketball coach to his work program.

* * *

Now Kenyon's athletic director and football coach, Rudy Kutler, is headed for service in the navy's body building program, and Imel falls heir to the entire athletic program at Kenyon.

He'll coach the Lords in swimming, baseball, basketball, football, tennis and track. Yes, he's still publicity director.

Oh, well, I'm a busy guy too, since I lost my helper several weeks ago. What's that you say? I don't need a helper? I can rock this ol' rockin' chair all by myself? You may be right at that.

* * *

That was a nice game of ball that Stan Partenheimer of Mansfield pitched for Canton of the Mid-Atlantic league last night as the Terriers took Erie 2-0.

What? You don't know Stan Partenheimer of Mansfield? His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Partenheimer, live at 503 Forest Hill road, and Stan went to business school here last winter. They moved to Mansfield from Akron last fall.

Partenheimer let the Tars down with four hits. His mound opponent was Shislia, who pitched last season for Fostoria.

* * *

Yes, and that was a nice game of ball Mansfield's Chuck Byers turned in for Charleston last evening, as the Senators defeated Dayton 9-2, and took first place in Mad-A. Chuck let the Ducks down with six hits.

Tyger Trackmen Closing Careers

Seventeen Mansfield high school trackmen will be making the last home appearance of their careers tomorrow evening when the Tygers tangle with Ashland at Stadium field in a twilight meet at 7 o'clock.

Senior members of the squad are: Witchey, Becker, Jones, Woodberry, Pore, Black, Franzen, Timmons, Winbigler, Dietzel, Pecht, Fink, Parker, Robertson, Atwater, Butterfield and Daugherty.

Saturday the Tygers compete in the district meet at Fremont, where they are regarded as favorites.

Fleming's Home Run Ends Game

Indians Repeat Rally To Defeat Bengals.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Horatio Alger boys of the American league—Cleveland's Indians with their late-inning rally magic—are out today to cut the one and one-half game lead of the top-flight New York Yankees. The Yanks are here for two contests.

The Tribesmen, who in their recent victory streak of 18 games made a habit of winning them the uphill way, snatched one from the Detroit Tigers' claws yesterday that was almost a repeat performance of Sunday's victory in the doubleheader nightcap.

* * *

The Indians started an inning earlier—in the eighth yesterday—to tie a Detroit lead of five runs, and then in the next inning they punched across the winning runs to win, 8 to 5.

Chunky Les Fleming provided the punch with his third home run after two were out, chasing in ahead of him Buster Mills and Jeff Heath.

The rookie first baseman, who drove in four runs to grab the batting honors, figured also in the Tribe's five-run uprising in the eighth that tied the score. He lined out the fourth single of the inning, after Oris Hockett, Buster Mills and Jeff Heath had registered their bingles ahead of him.

Ken Keltner then greeted Charley Fuchs, who replaced Dizzy Trout, with a double, which scored Heath and sent Fleming to third. Les scored from there when Catcher Birdie Ebbetts dropped the ball after tagging him. Keltner took third on a wild pitch, and came home on the next play while Otto Denning was thrown out.

Sharing the honors with Fleming, Relief Hurler Joe Heving achieved the remarkable record of winning two games in two days by pitching only one inning each in yesterday's contests and Sunday's doubleheader nightcap.

Manager Lou Boudreau named Chubby Dean to pitch today against either Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, or New York's shutout ace, Ernie Bonham.

Ordinarily anybody who can bat .414 in a class A-1 minor league can expect to have flags flying for a ceremonial cross-over of the major leagues' threshold

Les Fleming hit .414 for Nashville in the Southern association last year and was gunning for league record with an average of .421 until he was blanked in a doubleheader on the final day of the season. He batted .678 in the playoffs and .470 in the Dixie series, too.

* * *

But Fleming was greeted with ridicule when he undertook to become the regular first baseman of the Cleveland Indians this spring. Observers said he was too short and clumsy to field his position.

His stratospheric average, and his 29 home runs, didn't count, they said, because Nashville has a notoriously short rightfield fence

Well, the season is a month old now and Fleming not only still is holding forth at first base for the Tribe, but is a vital reason for the Indians being in second place today, a game and a half behind the New York Yankees

Boston Braves nosed out the Philadelphia Phils 3-2.

The second round of intersectional strife brought the western clubs of the National league to the east and concentrated all American league action in the west today

"Dick, I think this makes you the first racing secretary in America to take his entire salary in war bonds," J. J. Isaacson, manager of activities for Ak-Sar-Ben, remarked as he handed the contract to Leigh to sign.

"Glad to do it," replied the apple-cheeked, white-thatched Leigh. "Racing has got to do its part and I'm going to do mine 100 per cent What's more, I'm going to recommend that all other employes at the plant take as much of their pay as possible in war bonds."

Leigh, who will be serving his third term at Ak-Sar-Ben track, fell in line with the avowed policy of track officials when he agreed to take his pay in war bonds. Previously, they had announced that all proceeds from the meeting will be devoted to war-time, agricultural and civic aims

First task to confront Leigh will be chopping the list of entries from 1,000 applications on hand to 700 horses for which the track provides room.

Since the first of the year, Leigh has visited racing plants at New Orleans, Hot Springs, Caliente and Phoenix, as a result of which he has definite ideas as to the caliber of stock being offered Ak-Sar-Ben.

Chicago Track Has Record Gate

CHICAGO—(INS)—Officials of Sportsmens Park, Chicago's half-mile track, reported today that the mutuel handle for the first 13 days of the spring meeting had been nearly a million dollars in excess of the corresponding period for 1941.

* * *

The total this year is $4,241,473 in comparison with last year's figure of $3,298,522. The exceptionally favorable start to the Chicago racing season indicated to track owners that racing would go on for the duration of the war in this area unless military considerations make curtailment advisable.

* * *

The Sportsmans Park spring meet will end next Saturday and will be followed by Lincoln Fields.

Grade League Plays Openers

Bowman Hurler Has One-Hit Shutout.

Mansfield's grade school softball league got under way last evening with Bowman blanking Carpenter 9-0, Newman taking Hedges 9-6, and Woodland swamping Bushnell 20-7.

The Western-Brinkerhoff game was postponed, while Prospect won on forfeit from West Fifth.

Woodland's 20 runs were made on only 11 hits. Burkhart led the stick parade with three hits in four trips to the platter.

Reynolds allowed only one hit in blanking Carpenter, while the Hedges-Newman tilt was a free-for-all slugging bee.

Gus Dorazio Spoils Bobo

Talks About Campaign For Bout With Louis.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Gus Dorazio's latest job of spoiling a young heavyweight's title hopes—a stunning upset over Pittsburgh's Harry Bobo—so elated the battle-scarred veteran he's clamoring for another shot at Joe Louis.

The squat little Italian crouched and clouted his way to a split decision over the towering Nego in 10 furious rounds last night and probably knocked Bobo out of three juicy fights he had lined up this summer with Melio Bettina, Bob Pastor and either Buddy Baer or Lou Nova

"I want those fights now," puffed Dorazio. "I deserve 'em. And then I want Louis. I could beat him the same way I beat Bobo."

* * *

Outweighed 191 to 205½ and on the short end of 3 to 1 odds, Gus befuddled Bobo by weaving and bobbing and crashing in with powerful blows. It was Dorazio's second victory in three bouts with the Pittsburgher. All were decisions.

Redlegs Leave On Eastern Trip

BROOKLYN—(AP)—Today the Cincinnati Reds start an 11-game eastern swing opening a two-game series at Ebbets Field. A pair of victories for the Redlegs not only would salve the wound left in the humiliation at Crosley field two weeks ago, but would put the Reds in striking distance of the loop's top slot.

* * *

The May recovery of the Reds lifted them from seventh into a tie for fourth.

Conn Hurt In Family Battle

Accepting an invitation to the Pittsburgh home of his father-in-law so they could settle their past differences, Pvt. Billy Conn, leading contender for the heavyweight boxing title, found that fists and not words were the order of the day. He is pictured as he prepared to return to his army camp with his broken hand swathed in bandages. The break occurred when a punch of his went high, landing on his father-in-law's skull. Billy's bride, the former Mary Lou Smith (above) was present during the unscheduled pugilistic exhibition.

Conn's Punch Costs Dough

Father-in-Law's Hard Head Breaks Hand.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK—(AP)—The punch Billy Conn landed on his father-in-law's head, in a fight that started out as "kiss-and-make-up" feast, may cost the Pittsburgh Pretty Boy a cool $125,000 or more.

* * *

That's what he could have expected as his share from his planned late June or early July fight with Joe Louis.

This tussle is off now, because the punch broke Billy's hand and put him out of action for ten weeks or more.

Of course, Promoter Mike Jacobs says Bill'll get a return shot at the Bomber in September. Meantime, the June or July title chance will go to someone else, probably Robert Pastor in New York, Cleveland or Chicago.

Billy was back at Fort Wadsworth today taking up his buck-privating where he left off before going to his Pittsburgh home for the christening of his month-old son, David Philip. It was only a few hours after that ceremony Sunday that his father-in-law, former National League Outfielder Jimmy Smith, summoned Conn to the Smith home to straighten out their differences.

The two have been at odds for three years, ever since Billy fell in love with the girl who is now his wife — Smith's daughter, Mary Louise. When they were married a year ago, Smith threatened to "punch Conn's head off." The invitation to talk it over came from Art Rooney, friend of both.

* * *

"I went to Smith's home as Art asked," Billy related. "Then Smith said, "you and I have got things to talk over." He started to holler at me. Then he said, "Aren't you scared of me,' and I told him I wasn't scared of anybody, particularly him. Then it started. I hit him on the head, and that's when I broke my hand. It only lasted a few minutes before friends separated us."

Springfield dropped into second place as they lost to Dayton 4-2.

The Erie Sailors, boomed in pre-season days, fell again before Canton, 2 to 0, and dropped deeper into the cellar.

Games today: Springfield at Zanesville and Dayton at Canton: Charleston and Erie not scheduled.

Jack and Gene Aid Campaign

Old Rivals of Ring Ring Charity Bell.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The leading figures in one of the prize ring's most heated controversies buried the hatchet for a long count today as Commander Gene Tunney, USNRF, and Jack Dempsey, ex-heavyweight king, joined forces in behalf of the Knights of Columbus War Activities Ball to be held here May 1.

Commander Tunney, in charge of the physical training activities of the United States Navy, heads a sports committee which numbers among its members some of the most brilliant sporting luminaries of the last decade. In addition to the two former champs, the fight game's representatives include Don Dunphy, ace fight announcer; William F. Carey, former president of Madison Square Garden; and Arthur Donovan, famed referee.

The baseball diamond is represented by Tom Renrich and Buddy Hassett, New York Yankees of today, with the one and only "Babe" Ruth swinging for the Murderers' Row of bygone days.

Turning back the clock to the First World war days of 1917 when their famous slogan "Everybody Welcome, Everything Free" —was known wherever American troops fought and died, the Knights will devote the major portion of the proceeds to the affair to the National Catholic Community Service. PLAYERS REPORT FOR ALL-STAR TEAM

Seventeen softball players, including many veterans of reputation and youngsters of promise, answered first call for practice last evening for the all-star team which will meet the Ferguson State Auditors at Liberty park Sunday, May 24, in a "smokes for soldiers," benefit game.

A daily schedule of practice for the next two weeks was set up, with practice games booked on Wednesday and Friday evenings.

Buckeyes Plan Spring Game

Brown Picks Lineups For Saturday Battle.

By RODGER NELSON

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Ohio State will have an insight to its fortunes of next fall's football campaign when Coach Paul E. Brown sends his charges against one another next Saturday in the annual spring game, denoting the end of the off-season practice period.

* * *

The lineup of the competing squads pits the first and fourth teams against the combined forces of the second and third stringers, and Buckeye followers, anxious to see what effect the draft and graduation has had upon the "lean and hungry" horde, will undoubtedly flock to Ohio stadium in large numbers to watch the intra-squad skirmish.

* * *

The game will serve as a climax to the eleventh annual Ohio State football clinic in collaboration with the annual meeting of the Ohio High School Football Coaches association scheduled to convene in Columbus, Friday. The two-day session is expected to attract some 500 scholastic mentors.

Brown released the probable starting lineups, barring unforeseen mishaps in practices the remainder of the week.

Bill Vickroy, Toledo veteran of one Western conference campaign, will handle the centering chores, flanked by Hal Dean, Wooster, and Lin Houston of Massillon at the guards.

Dick Palmer will serve as captain of the "Whites" from the fullback position with backfield cohorts in the persons of Tommy James, Massillon, left halfback; William Durtschi, Galion, right half and West Jefferson's Paul Friday, at quarter.

The line, from right end to left end straight across, reads: John White, River Rouge Mich., (brother to Michigan's Paul White); Jim Reese, Greenville; Don Steinberg, Toledo; Gordon Appleby, Massillon; Robert Jabbusch, Elyria, Don McCafferty, Cleveland, and Cecil Souders of Bucyrus.

Replacements for these two "probable starting lineups" will be drawn from the third and fourth team ranks, the "Reds" receiving aid from the fourth as the Whites rely on third team substitutions.

The game, unlike any of the past few weeks in the usual Saturday scrimmages, will be open to the public with a nominal general admission fee being charged to defray the expenses of playing host to the high school coaches over the week-end.

Kick-off time is at 3 p. m.

GET BALANCE OF TAX FUNDS

Richland Subdivisions Will Receive Money Due Them of Settlement.

Richland county's subdivisions next Friday will receive the balance of the real estate and special assessment levies collected during the first half of the year as Auditor Norman L. Wolfe makes the semi-annual tax settlement.

Advances to local governments which need money to meet their operation costs have consumed more than $400,000 of the $707,000 collected, Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck said.

Another $8,772 will go to the county treasurer and auditor for their work in preparing the tax books, collecting the money, and distributing it. Their fees, however, will go into the county's general fund.

Schools will receive approximately half of the money collected during the first-half period, or $356,033. Of that amount, $211,406 was ear-marked for the Mansfield schools which have already drawn $180,000 of their share in advances. The balance due is $31,406.

The county government will get $110,474, while $106,810 will go to the city of Mansfield. Both have drawn heavy advances. The Shelby schools' share is $37,354 and the city of Shelby will receive $12,643. A total of $50,560 will go to the county's 18 townships. Approximately $31,000 will be allocated to the villages.

SELL LICENSES FOR CIGARETS

Sale of 1942 cigaret licenses to wholesale and retail dealers in the city and county had been started today by County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe who said the permits must be purchased and displayed by May 25.

The licenses may be obtained at the auditor's office in the courthouse or ordered by mail. Retail licenses are $25 each while wholesalers must pay $100. Mail orders must be accompanied by check or money order made out to the county auditor.

Auditor Wolfe said he sold 415 permits in 1941, including four wholesalers' licenses.

DISCOVERS A COINCIDENCE

SCOTT FIELD, Mo.—(U.P.)—Military Police Officer Fred Kressman was sure he had the culprit when he caught a soldier who offered him a leave-pass made out in another soldier's name. The proffered pass was made out to Kressman himself. He had lost it earlier in the day.

KEEP UP FLOW OF MATERIALS, FOREMEN TOLD

Speaker Forecasts Industrial Blitzkrieg in U. S.; Kyle Elected President.

This war is as much a contest of industrial production systems as it is a battle of armed forces, making it imperative that labor and industry keep up an uninterrupted flow of materials to the fighting fronts, Capt. A. A. Nichoson of New York said last night in a talk before the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club.

Club members elected Verne O. Kyle of the Tappan Stove company to head the organization in 1942-43. He succeeds P. M. Wooden of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company. Last night's dinner meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel concluded the club's schedule of monthly sessions until next fall.

"I prophesy that before this war is over Uncle Sam will stage an industrial blitzkrieg that will blast Hitler and the Japs off the map and knock the top off the world," said Capt. Nichoson, who is assistant to the vice president of the Texas company and a leading lecturer.

"Industry has more than lived up to expectations," he continued. "It has changed from domestic to war production almost overnight and before long there will be a flood of materials that will sweep the country to victory.

"Before we win, however, we must all make up our minds to do the things we are being called upon to do. There can be no partiality or evasion. If we criticize, let our criticism be constructive and backed by proof that we can do it better.

"This is not a one-man job. All of us must curtail our buying of non-essentials if we are to avoid the curse of inflation," he warned. "What point would there be in gaining freedom abroad only to find that we had lost it within our own boundaries?"

Capt. Nichoson said the reports being circulated that many firms handling war orders are making huge profits are "entirely wrong." He said industry's return on its investment in the period from 1920 to 1930 was 4.4 per cent, from 1930 to 1940 only 1.5 per cent, and he predicted that its earnings during the war period would be less than one per cent."

Other officers chosen by the club for the next year were R. C. Snyder, Ohio Public Service company, vice president; John Vrbanac, Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, secretary, and John Springer, Ohio Brass company, treasurer. New members of the board of control include Arthur Love, Shelby Salesbook company; Harry Earl, Shelby Cycle company; E. N. Nelson, Ohio Public Service company, Ashland, and H. O. Hoffman, Faultless Rubber company, Ashland.

This country is engaged in the business of winning a war. It is a serious business, affecting the lives and works and plans of all of us.

Day by day, wartime conditions raise new problems in the making and selling and using of goods. Day by day, advertising is called upon to help meet these emergency problems. And by its very nature, the newspaper is better equipped to serve advertisers and consumers today than any other medium.

The speed and flexibility of newspapers, more valuable today than ever before, enable an advertiser to meet the swiftly changing market conditions of this emergency, when and where these changes occur. In newspapers, an advertiser can deliver the right message in the right markets at the right time. In no other medium can an advertiser fit his message to current emergencies so quickly and effectively.

The coverage of newspapers, more complete today than ever before, includes all the people an advertiser wants to reach. Executives, retailers, consumers... everybody who should be kept posted on a company's wartime operations...can be reached through this single medium. (The latest official ABC reports show newspaper circulations at an all-time high.)

Reader interest in newspapers, more intensive today than ever before, assures an advertiser of even closer attention to well-executed newspaper ads than in the past. The Continuing Study of Newspaper Reading shows that war news in the headlines means more careful reading of the ads; that the more important the news, the more thoroughly people read the whole paper, including the ads. Today, more than ever before, people realize that the ads are news, too...timely news that gives them valuable advice, saves them time, energy and money.

The efficiency of newspapers, more important today than ever before, gives an advertiser a more economical, waste-free delivery of his message than any other medium can offer. Advertising economy is all-important these days, and can best be effected through the marksmanship of newspaper advertising.

* * *

These and other advantages, each one accentuated by wartime business conditions, make newspaper space the one medium which is completely geared to today's needs. That's why the makers and sellers and buyers of goods are finding newspaper advertising so serviceable and so valuable today.

STOCK LEADERS KEEP BALANCE, GAIN SLIGHTLY

Westinghouse Holds Its Own In Early Trading; Drop in Loans Recorded.

NEW YORK — Leading stocks maintained their balance in today's early market transactions but such gains as appeared were mostly in small fractions.

Unchanged to up a shade at a moderately active opening were Phelps Dodge, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, General Electric and Anaconda, a trifle lower were U. S. Steel, General Motors and Chrysler.

Boardrooms studied the Federal Reserve Board compilation disclosing another country-wide drop in loans to commerce, industry and agriculture.

Market analysts observed signs of a steadier trend in retail sales which, since announcement of the imposition of price ceilings, have dwindled in most parts of the nation.

32 SAVED FROM GERMAN GUNS

Survivors Say Appearance of Vessel Helped Them.

MIAMI, Fla. —(UP)— The survivors of a medium-sized United States merchantman believed today that the appearance of an American naval vessel saved them from being machine-gunned by the two submarines which had sunk their ship

They said the naval vessel fired several rounds at the U-boats, but they did not know whether they had scored hits

All 32 of the crew were saved though two men were injured

Three men were lost, however, in the sinking of a second medium sized United States merchantman. Both ships were torpedoed off the lower Atlantic coast early last Wednesday islands, at Kessa, apparently were a separate unit and not a part of the fleet involved in the Coral sea battle.

TWO MORE JAP SHIPS DAMAGED

The presence of a large Japanese tanker in the treacherous waters of the Deboynes, the largest of which, Pannaetti, is only about four miles long, would indicate that the Japanese invasion forces were seeking shelter from the Allies' sea-scouring air patrols wherever they could find it.

In the Coral sea battle itself, Japan lost 17 ships.

Most of these were war vessels, presumably the screen for heavy invasion forces, and the conviction has grown among Australians that when the whole story of the battle and its aftermath is known it will be found that shiploads of Japanese troops and weapons went to the bottom of the Pacific.

This already has received some substantiation from Allied communiques. Since the Japanese broke off the sea battle, but presumably as a consequence of it, the Allies have announced as damaged by air attack a seaplane tender and a tanker, two submarines and the ships listed today.

The only enemy actions mentioned in the communique were two apparently feeble air attacks, one with slight damage to an airdrome at Port Moresby, the Allies' New Guinea stronghold, and the other, with no damage, on an airdrome on Horn island in Torres strait between New Guinea and the mainland.

Still, high Australians warned that the security won in the Coral sea may only be a respite and that it probably was the forerunner of greater Japanese efforts.

Reveal Yamamoto Commanded Fleet

(By United Press)

The Japanese fleet which was defeated in the Battle of the Coral sea was commanded by Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander-in-chief of the Japanese combined fleet, Tokyo revealed today in a tacit confession of the battle's importance

The disclosure which magnified the victory of United States and Allied forces, was made by the Tokyo navy ministry in a communique, broadcast by the Japanese radio, which said:

"Premier Hideki Tojo has cabled a message of felicitations to Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander-in-chief of the combined fleet and unit commander of the Japanese navy, who participated in the Coral sea battle, on the brilliant achievements attained by the Japanese navy against the combined Anglo-American fleet."

The "combined Anglo-American fleet," apparently, was a United States navy task force aided by Australian light units and Allied land-based planes from Australia No British ships, it was believed, took part Yamamoto, Japan's top admiral, was naval attache in Washington in 1925.

Japan stuck to its story that it won a great victory in the Coral sea and had "destroyed the main strength of the Anglo-American fleet," as the official Domei news agency put it. The Japanese claims have been thoroughly discredited by the United Nations.

In what seemed to be a final statement of claims on the battle, Japan said today that eight United States and British warships had been sunk or damaged beyond repair and 98 Allied planes destroyed

It admitted, as it had previously, only the loss of a small aircraft carrier and 31 planes.

U. S. Subs Bag Cruiser, Cargo Ships

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Striking at Japanese shipping throughout the Far East with increasing success, United States submarines today paved the way for new counter blows against Nipponese sea power similar to that struck by America's Pacific fleet in the recent Coral sea battle

Scope and importance of America's undersea war against the Nipponese was indicated by the Navy's latest communique which revealed that U. S. subs operating in the Far East have sunk an enemy cruiser and two cargo ships.

The sinkings brought to at least 42 the number of Jap vessels of all type sunk by American submarines since the outbreak of war. In contrast, only 66 warships and other types of vessels were sunk during the same period by naval aircraft and surface warships the rear of the store, they found tire marks from an automobile which they believe was used in the burglary Minnear told police that he had seen a wine-colored car leave the alley leading from the rear of the store shortly before discovering the rear door open Minnear said the sedan went east on East Fourth street.

The burglary at Komito's store was not reported until this morning when Komito called police and told them that his store had been entered and looted.

Police Capt. Paul Whipp, who investigated the burglary at Brooks, said that the burglaries had been committed during the time the regular patrolmen assigned to patrol the stores had been called to another part of the city for emergency duty. The patrolman was on emergency duty from 3 to about 4:30 a. m. and stores were not patrolled during that time.

Chief Bell said that he did not believe the burglars could have carried away the 275 suits in one or even two automobiles and stated that he believed a truck was used by "a highly-organized gang from outside the city"

Bell said that even though the burglaries were committed at an hour when few persons are on the streets that he hoped to be able to find some witnesses who may have noticed activity about the stores From the witnesses, Chief Bell said he hoped to get descriptions of the burglars or vehicles used.
